Delegates demand concerted OIC steps

NIAMEY, Aug. 22 (Agencies) - Delegates who arrived here for the 13th Islamic Conference foreign ministers' meeting Sunday in the Niger capital stressed the need for concerted action against threats to the security of the Islamic world. "This conference is taking place at a very critical time for the Muslim world," a Palestine Liberation Organization representative said. "We hope in will result in positive results at a moment when we are all vicitus of bar-haric acts by the United States and Israel, its right hand," be said, adding that the conference must find a solution to the problem of Lehanon.

The Niger newspaper Le Sahel noted in an editorial that the Muslim world should react unitedly against the "savage and criminal acts' of the Israeli offensive in Lehanon. As delegations from Asia, the Middle East and African countries arrived here, the Libyan delegation made an abrupt exit. Delegation leader Muftah Zawam said they were subjected to body searches and detailed examination of their luggage and were detained by police for five hours. .

Niger sources at the meeting said they were not surprised at the move. They noted that tight security measures must be observed at any international conference, and that the Libyans were the only delegates to take offense. The Organization of Islamic Conference Secretary-General Habib Chatti said the Libyans' decision to leave was a "bilateral affair" concerning Niger and Libya. "Our organization regrets the absence of any member state, whichever it might be. We deplore this incident which is foreign to the Islamic Conference," he said.

The conference will discuss the Palestinian problem, the Iraq-Iranian conflict and the situation in Afghanistan as priority issues:

arrive in Jordan, Iraq

AMMAN, Aug. 22 (Agencies) — A group of 292 Palestinian fighters evacuated Saturday from Beirut arrived at a military air base near the Jordanian capital Sunday from Cyprus, it was repor-

The Palestinians were welcomed by King Hussein of Jordan, Prime Minister Mudar Badran, commander-in-chief of the Jordanian Army, Zeid Ben Shaker, and the head of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) in Amman, Abdul Razak El Yehyah, They had been flown in from Larnaca on board two planes from the Lebanese airlines MEA.

Another 135 Palestinian fighters from the Lebanese capital arrived in Baghdad earlier Sunday after transiting through Cyprus, it was reported. All were members of the pro-Iraqi Arah Liberation Front. They were met at Baghdad airport by Naim Haddad, a member of the Iraqi Revolutionary Command Council, members of the Arab Liberation Front, and a number of Palestinians.

Earlier at Larnaca, Farouk Kaddoumi, foreign affairs spokesman of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), said goodbye to the 400 commandos, praising them as "freedom fighters" who had not left Beirut in defeat,

Kaddoumi said the dispersal of the PLO army was not the end of the fight for a Palestinian homeland. "This is the beginning of armed struggle," he said, "Our fighters will continue to fight on all levels to gain a homeland." The departure of the 400 - about 140 for Iraq and the rest for Jordan — was delayed while Kaddoumi flew to Larnaca from Paris, according to the pilot of one of the Middle East Airlines planes taking them to their new exile

Beirut Airport may reopen soon

NICOSIA, Aug. 22 (AFP) - Beirut International Airport, closed immediately after the Israeli invasion of Lebanon nearly three months ago, may reopen at the beginning of radio monitored bere.

The radio said the airport, at present under Israeli army control, could reopen after the arrival next week of the American and Italian contingents to the multinational buffer force. Meanwhile, Israeli forces restored West Beirut's electricity supply Sunday morning after a monthlong blackont. The Israelis had cut off power and water supplies to the 500,000 inhabitants of the western balf of the city July 26 to tighten their blockade.

8 Iranians die in artillery duels

NICOSIA, Aug. 22 (AP) — Eight Iranian comhatants were killed in artillery duels in the northern sector of the 500-kilometer Iran-Iraq warfront, the Iraqi high command reported Saturday.

In its communique No. 877, the command said scores of Iranian soldiers also were wounded the daylong distant exchange of gunfire. It said that one ammunition dump on the Iranian side of the southern Iraqi Basra sector was blown up.

The communique added that the Iranians shelled residential areas in the border town of Zurhatiyeh, 110 kilometers southeast of Baghdad, causing some damage. There has been no report of serious fighting in the Basra sector-that abuts on the Gulf and the Shatt El-Arah Water estuary, flashpoint of the 23-month-old war.

Instead, the Iraqi communique indicated the Iranians have been shifting emphasis to northern regions adjacent to Iraq's Kirkuk oilfields. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and his top military lieutenants last week warned that Iran was expected to launch fresh incursions into northern Iraqi areas. The Iraqis, presumably bent on countering the Iranian military menace in : the north, bombed Iran's oil installations on the Kharg Island Ang. 18.

The Baghdad government meanwhile issued a warning to . International shipping companies to keep their freighters and oil tankers away from Kbarg and northern Gulf waters, declaring the region an "exclusion zone." An Iraqi government spokesman said at the time that the exclusion zone was defined with a view to averting a recurrence of the attacks on two vessels — 9,074-ton Greek freighter Litsion and 9,897-ton South Korean ship Sambow Banner — Ang. 9.

The Iraqis said they shelled the two vessels by mistake, and a spokesman claimed then that Iraqi gunners thought the ships were " Iranian naval targets."

The exclusion zone has not been defined in precise geographic terms. But the Nicosia-based Middle East Economic Survey said the zone covers several thousand square miles of the northern part of the Gulf, starting approximately 30 3 nautical miles due east of the port Kuwait and running south down the center of the Gulf.

Ito base office in Syria

PRAGUE, Aug. 22 (AP) — The future political, military and administrative head-quarters of the Palestine Liberation Organization will he in Damascus, capital of Syria, a PLO spokesman said here Saturday.

Struggle to go on

In an interview with the Czeehoslovak state news agency CTK, Taisir Khalid, politburo memher of the "Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a PLO group, said the PLO decided to leave West Beirut "to prevent further loss of lives of civilians and harharic destruction of the city." He was quoted as saying that the PLO leadership had decided to concentrate its military forces mainly in those Arah countries hordering on Israel, "thus foiling the U.S.-Israeli plan to disperse the Palestinian fighters."

The United States and Israel, Khalid alleged, exert pressure also on Syria, seeking to make it join the Camp David accords and withdraw its support for the PLO, and are trying to persuade other Arah countries to sign "capitulatory agreements" with Israel. However, he said. "no matter how hard the U.S. and Israel try to destroy the alliance between the PLO and progressive Arah countries and between the PLO and the Soviet Union and other Socialist countries.

they will fail," CTK reported.

Meanwhile, the main PLO group, the Fatch, was reported to have decided to "distribute its leaders" in Arah countries rather than base in one specific capital. BEIRUT. Aug. 22 (AFP) — The relations between Christian and Muslim deputies worsened Sunday, the day before parliament was scheduled to convene to elect a successor to President Elias Sarkis whose term expires Muslim and nationalist forces hostile to the sole candidate Beshir Gemayel, have accused Gemayel and his Christian militia of cutting telephone lines hetween East and West Beirut to prevent Muslim deputies from consulting one another.

Muslim leaders also claim some deputies have, received threats to show up for Monday's voting session which appears in danger for lack of a quorum.

Lebanese television meanwhile reported that former President Camille Chamoun nationalist and Druze comspoke with munity leader Walid Jumhlatt in the presidential palace outside Beirut Sunday in their first meeting since the 1976 Lebanese civil war. Questioned about their meeting Sunday, the two leaders, both from the Sbuf Mountain region, said they were concerned about the "necessity of preserving peaceful coexistence" between the Sbuf Druze and Maronite communities "regardless of the results of the presidential election.

Gemayel, bead of the .United Christian Militia, is widely opposed by the Muslim population which see him as Israel's candidate backed by invading rtoops and representing the differences which have kept Lebanon's civil war smoldering for eight years.

Although Muslim leaders have yet to propose a rival candidate, it is believed that former President Camille Chamoun. Gaby Lahoud, a former army officer, and Raymond Eddy, a moderate Christian deputy currently in exile in Paris, would be Weinberger blasts blockade WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (Agencies) adding that Habib was strongly opposed to this kind of delay.

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinherger said Sunday Israel had no right to block the withdrawal of Palestinian commandos from Beirut under the evacuation plan negotiated by U.S. envoy Philip Hahih.

But he described a dispute over whether the Palestinian fighters had breached the agreement hy loading jeeps on a ship taking them to Cyprus as a slight hitch. Two Israeli missile hoats were blocking the entrance to Beirut harbor, Israeli Army tadio said.

"Under the agreement, there is no hasic right for the Israelis to block the departing ships...tbe port is supposed to be under the control of the French," Weinberger said in a television interview. "Twenty jeeps seem to be the major part of the dispute...lt's a lawyers' dispute," be said.

Weinberger suggested the ship, carrying about 1,000 PLO fighters, should sail and the dispute should be settled when it reached Tunis. He said hoped disagreement of this kind could be settled without any major impact on the timetable for evacuation of an estimated 7,000 PLO commandos from the Lehanese capital. Weinberger said the agreement, which ended the 10-week Israeli siege of West Beirut, should not be affected by the dispute over 20 jeeps. "I can envisage this kind of. dispute being raised by every single item and I don't think we can live with that," he said,

Weinberget said 800 U.S. marines, due to land in Beirut later this week as part of a multi-national buffer force, were not expected to be at risk. "The Hahib plan is to minimize the risk. It is not a combat situation...lf there is a breach of the ceasefire, the multi-national would go out," he said.

The commandos were due to leave for Larnaca, in Cyprus, on their way to Tunisia following the departure Saturday of a first group of 397 Palestinians, who flew from Cyprus 10 Jordan and Iraq Sunday.

Israel wins battle, loses war

By Robert Little

LONDON, Aug. 22 — Almost before the dust and smoke had hegun to settle over the devastated city of Beirut, leaders of the Jewish diaspora around the world were already beginning to count the long-term costs of Menahem Begin's insane, unprovoked assault on neutral Lehanon.

Although it has somehow been conventionally ignored throughout the I1-week merciless onslaught by the Israeli forces, the tragic irony is that alone of all Middle East states, Lebanon has never at any time officially declared war against Israel.

Maybe partly because of this, what has been of intensely growing concern to even the most diehard of Israel's Zionist supporters abroad, has been the totally unexpected scale and ferocity of worldwide opposition to what they had naturally accepted as a justified, legiti-mate, defensive "Operation for Peace in

Only now not even they can any longer avoid one unpalatable bard fact. That is wbatever may have happened to Jews in the past, it has been convincingly demonstrated that their own leaders are every bit as willing to commit just as great atrocities against the weak, innocent and defenseless as were perpetrated against their own kind by Hitler's If this discovery has come as a somewhat belated surprise to a reasonable percentage of the Western diaspora, who before had chosen to turn a blind eye to the ruthless military repression of the Palestinian communities on the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip, to the overwhelming majority of Gentiles in their host countries it has been an unnerving

The plain truth of the matter is that for 35 years the usurpers of the Palestinian lands that is now Israel were able to play on the completely mis-informed sympathies of liberal opinion in the wealthy industrialized nations, representing themselves as a beleaguered, peace-loving people encircled by barbarous aliens. In a single stroke, Menahem Begin and Ariel Sharon have made clear to all, who are the barbarians.

There can be no doubt that in the West in particular this has had a traumatic impact. Throughout Europe and North America as the weeks went by, a swelling tide of public opposition to the carnage being wrought by Israeli forces against the civilian population in Lebanon reached unprecedented propor-tions for a conflict in which their countries were not directly involved.

It has been this sharp and dramatic shift away from previous position of general support for Israel that has caused grave mis-(Continued on page 2) givings for the future welfare and security of lewish communities in many Western countries. As public opinion became daily more horrified at the extent of human suffering caused by the releatless bombardment of Beirut, leaders of world Jewry — supporters as well as opponents of Menahem Begin's government - became increasingly concerned at the possible effects. "This kind of atmosphere is causing grave entiety among the Jewish community. We have not been experiencing such open hostility since before the Second World War," Board of Deputies of British Jews, said in a television interview. "The atmosphere is becoming in some cases very anti-Jewish as well as anti-Israel." A leading member of the rightwing, pro-Begin Herut movement in Europe, Eric Graus, said that the war in Lebanon had created a climate which was becoming very "unhealthy" for all Jews.

More spectacularly. in Greece sympathies for the Palestinians in Lebanon had provoked a strong wave of anti-Semitism that had created alarm among the country's 5,000-strong Jewish community. Editorials in pro-government papers were asking the question: "We wonder if Hitler was not right after all?"

Earlier during the Israeli biltz on Beirut, an opinion poll in Athens showed that one out of every two Greeks expected the country to become involved in the Lebanese crisis.

In Turkey, armed police were out in force to control crowds in Istanbul's main Taksim Square who had gathered with placards calling on the military government to unite with the Arab states in a Jihad against Israel. en ac far away as Australia (a con page statement condemning Israel's actions and calling on the Israeli government to rethink its whole attitude toward the Palestinian question.

As was to he expected, according to Israeli diplomats the "hysterical outcry" against their country's savage conduct was entirely the creation of a hiased news media. Quoting a statement hy Menahem Begin the Israeli consul-general in Britain accused the media in Europe of "magnifying out of all proportion" events in Beirut.

The restaurant attack in Paris, he said, had been the consequence of the French media's "anti-Israel incitement, which is tantamount to anti-Jewish incitement." It was also provoked by what he called "borrendous talk" in comparing Israeli attacks on Beirut to Nazi actions in France. This was a clear allusion to reports of remarks made by President Francois Mitterrand during a visit to Hungary. when he compared the Israeli siege of Beirat with the Nazi massacre of hundreds of men,

"No oody had foreseen the scale of destruction, but given the country's basically sound economy and the resiliency of the people, I am confident we can successfully meet the challenge," said Attallah in an interview in his presidential palace office where all the windows were blown out in a rocket attack last month.

For a country that traditionally earned more than two-third of its income from services-related industries - banking. trade, tourism and medical care - Attallah said the most urgent task is to restore confidence by demonstrating that Lebanon is rectious about rebuilding now, despite internal turbulence and instability in the Attallah said the reconstruction to be effected will have to be a global effort involving the United States, Western Europe and international organizations. But he said he expects a major portion of the money to come from the oil-producing Arab countries.

West Bank, Gaza Arabs hail PLO withdrawal from Beirut

the West Bank and Gaza bailed the start of the Palestinian withdrawal from Beirut by displaying a pride that contrasted with the despondency felt when Israel invaded Leba-

"The decision of the PLO (Palestine Liberation Organization) to leave Beirut shows that we are a civilized people who know what bumanity is," said Ziad Abu-Ziad, editor of the East Jerusalem Arabic-language newspaper Al -Fair. Moderate and extreme Arabs in the occupied territories said the PLO men fought like beroes and were leaving Beirut to prevent Israel destroying it and killing civilians.

"We weren't crushed and we showed that we are the only Arab force that can stand up against the most powerful army in the Middle East." said Abu-Ziad who favors an independent Palestinian state.

Defense Minister Ariel Sbaron has repeatedly said that Israel's invasion of Lebanon will open the way for an Israeliimposed autonomy in the West Bank and Gaza Strip by showing Arabs there that the PLO cannot achieve its goals.

West Bank Arabs say the war has had the opposite effect, increasing Palestinian resolve to reject Israeli plans for limited Arab self-rule. "In the first days of the war, we were depressed, but as the weeks passed we saw that the PLO had not been defeated and was holding out against the Israelis," said Bethelehem Mayor Elias Freij. a moderate and the only prominent Arab to withstand an Israeli purge of Palestinian mayors in the West Bank and Gaza.

There have been few demonstrations of solidarity with the PLO but local Arab papers fiercely criticized Arab states for their failure to help the commandos.

During the invasion, Israel dismissed nine Arab mayors and six town councils in an attempt to remove Palestinian leaders likely to oppose autonomy for the Palestinians in the territories Israel occupied in the 1967 Middle East war.

But local Palestinians are convinced that the latest war will make it barder for Israel to impose its plan. "This is not the end of PLO operations. I'm optimistic over the future. We bave shown the world that there is a problem called the Palestinian problem" said Abu-Ziad.

emphasizes negotiations

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (AP) — In a speech emphasizing negotiation instead of confrontation, the Reagan administration's chief expert on Latin America says "the potential cornerstones of peace" exist in Central America.

Thomas Enders, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, also ruled out more firmly than the administration has previously - the use of American troops in the region.

"U.S. troops are no solution now," Enders said in a speech delivered in San Francisco Friday. The text was made available here

Officials said the tone of the speech bore the stamp of Secretary of State George P. Shultz. who has noticeably softened the repeated rhetoric employed by his predecessor Alex-

The focus of Enders' speech was on Nicaragua, which he said has become "the preserve of a small Cuban-advised elite of Marxist-Leninists disposing of growing military power and hostile to all forms of social life but those they dominate." He said Nicaragua continues to back the insurgency in El Salvador and is waging "terrorist and other aggressive actions" against Honduras and Costa Rica. Those activities must stop, he said.

However, be also said the previous regime of Anastasio Somoza had been "discredited" and said it is "for Nicaragua to decide what kind of government it has. No one challenges

Although he said there was "little to show" for past attempts to talk with the Sandinista government, it is important to keep trying. "We should not abandon this idea." he said. Nicaraguan officials and some congressional critics have said the Reagan administration did not seem serious about negotiations with Nicaragua in the past.

Cubans seen as a threat

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (AFP) — Cuba's increasingly close military ties with the Soviet Union are a threat to U.S. security, a State Department report released Saturday said.

A military modernization program and experience gained by Cuhan troops in Africa had given Cuha a "substantial regional inter-vention capability," according to the study. Cuba now had 3,000 to 4,000 soldiers ready for any airlift and had improved the capacity of its air and sea troop transport vehicles.

"Although modest by Western standards. this capability is impressive in the Central American and Caribbean context," the State Department said. "It would be employed most effectively in aiding a regional ally against an external invasion or in suppressing internal conflict."

According to the report, Cuha has the second largest military force in the Caribbean basin and the second largest army in Latin America after Brazil's. Its air force also "is one, of the largest and probably bestequipped in Latin America." "Because of Cuha's proximity to vital sea lanes, the Soviets or Cuhans in wartime could attempt to interdict the movement of troops, supplies and raw materials in the Gulf of Mexico and Caribbean Sea," the State Department said. In addition, the emergence of governments sympathetic to Havana in Nicaragua and Grenada could enable Cuba to enlarge its sphere of intervention, the report said. Some 4,600 Soviet soldlers and military advisers stationed on the Caribbean Island were there mainly as a "small symbolic commitment." the State Department believed.

But Moscow has given Cuba some 66.000 tons of military material during the past 18 months compared to an annual average of 15,000 tons for the past decade.

Saboteurs held in Peru

LIMA. Aug. 22 (R) — Peruvian police armed with emergency powers of search and arrest rounded up suspected left-wing saboteurs Saturday as the press and public applauded the government's tough stand against political extremists.

Police spokesmen were tight-lipped about the security operation, but informed sources said between 30 and 60 persons were picked up in connection with Thursday night's incidents in Lima. The government Friday suspended constitutional guarantees in the capital and adjacent port of Callao after suspected leftist guerrillas blacked out the city and attacked shops and official huildings.

A state of emergency declared for at least 60 days stopped short of intervention by the armed forces. But it gave police power to search homes and make arrests without warrants, hold suspects indefinitely and restrict movements and public meetings. Similar measures have been in force for most of this year in the southeastern mountain region of Ayacucho, focus of activity by a Madist guerrilla group called Seodero Luminoso (shining

The group was widely believed responsible for Thursday's coordinated attacks on Lima's power supply and city center. The national press almost unanimously supported the government's action with the popular tabloid Ultima Hora headlining its front-page editorial: "At last the government has acted like a man."

The mass circulation daily Expreso declared it was about time the government had acted and went on to suggest the military should he called in to cooperate with police. The influential daily El Comercio summed up public indignation over the violence, saying: The government has heeded the clamor of the oppulation." Only the communist daily Diario de Marca criticized the state of emergency, warning its readers: "We could all go to jail,"

Lima remained calm and no incidents were reported overnight,

The foreign ministers of the Islamic states who opened a meeting in Niger yesterday will have their hands full of issues that merit immediate and effective attention. The ministers represent the 40-member states of the Organization of Islamic Conference which is based in Jeddah. It was inspired by King Faisal who also proposed and worked to create a number of Islamic organizations to give body and substance to his concept of Islamic solidarity.

The OIC has done a great deal of service to the Islamic cause and to that of Islamic solidarity but as a political and economic bloc it has yet to make its influence felt worldwide. It is of course immensely more difficult to visualize the emergence of an Islamic military force with so many of the member states falling under the influence of either superpower.

In any case, it could have evolved a political machinery to strive for greater cohesion and a unified voice at international forums so that it may become a moral and political force to be reckoned with as its founders must have envisaged.

Its supreme test came first when the Soviet Union invaded and occupied Afghanistan. Not much was done to let the Soviet Union know how strongly the Muslim world felt about it because at least some of the member states were too closely allied to the Soviet Union to risk irritating it. Besides, the U.S.-backed Israeli occupation of some Arab states frustrated any effort to make a stand with regard to Afghanistan. If the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan is morally indefensible. what about the occupation of the West Bank, Syria and Lehanon hy Israeli forces armed and hankrolled by the U.S.?

The Iraq-Iran war has proved too intractable for the OIC despite its many attempts at mediation through a high-level committee headed by presidents. The war has gone on and the OIC has had to give up the futile exercise.

The OIC has a problem of alliances which may be hindering full freedom of action or, at least, expression when it comes to opposing superpower actions. It should, therefore, aim at evolving an independent foreign policy that is dictated by the collective interests of its own states and peoples. Only then will its voice be heard and taken into serious consideration. Perhaps the tragedy of Lebanon will prompt the OIC to start the journey toward that end.

During this period, the Arah demands have been rejected by Israel. In 1948 the Arabs demanded the removal of Israel from the Arah land. In 1956 the Arabs demanded what they had rejected in 1948 during the armistice year. In 1967 the Arabs demanded again what had been rejected in 1956 and forgot what had been offered to them in 1948. How PLO became core of Arab-Israeli conflict strengthened by a series of international hijackings in the early 1970s and the killing of Israeli atbletes at the 1972 Munich Olympics. These operations, carried out by radical PLO factions, were never publicly denounced by the mainstream leadership.

The PLO nevertheless made diplomatic inroads in the West and Western states came to regard its participation as vital in any settlement of the Middle East crisis.

Since the mid-1970s, Arafai has tried to alter the movement's image and has concentrated recently on international diplomacy to press the Palestinian case. He won the movement its independence from the Arab states in October 1974 when an Arab summit recognized it as the sole, leghimate representative of the Palestinian people, thereby dismissing Jordan's claim to represent the Palestinians of the occupied West Bank.

Within a month, Arafat had traveled to the United Nations General Assembly in New York to deliver this offer to negotiate a settlement of the Palestinian question: "I have come bearing an olive branch and a freedom fighter's gun. Do not let the olive branch fall from my hand."

The war with Israel in Lebanon was not the PLO's first encounter with threatened annihilation.

Relations with King Hussein of Jordan deteriorated after radical Palestinian commandos hijacked three airliners to a Jordanian desert airfield in 1970. Jordan was already worried that commando activity across its border was inviting Israeli retaliation. The hijacking sparked a crackdown in which Jordan's army drove the commandos from the country.

The PLO moved to Beirut, where it became embroiled in growing factional strife that led to a civil war between right-wing militias and leftist

When Syria entered Lebanon in 1976 to end the civil war and effectively prevent the Christians from being defeated by a PLO-nationalist coalition, the Palestinians came into direct conflict with Syrian forces. The PLO feared the Damascus government. was out to crush its growing independence.

It nevertheless survived and, after mending its fences with Syria, became a significant force in chaotic postwar Lebanon, drawing accusations that it operated as a state within a state.

The commando movements grouped in the PLO continued to suffer militarily at the hands of the Israelis, however. They were pushed back from South Lebanon in 1978 and again this year as an Israeli invasion force stormed up as far as Beirut.

Despite having the bulk of its fighters besieged in West Beirut by the Israeli army, the PLO won praise in the Arab world for holding out against a vastly superior force. But in the short term, the siege has brought the movement no closer to achieving an independent Palestinian homeland. Western sympathizers toward the PLO fear that if no progress in that direction is made soon, radical Palestinian factions may revert to the international terrorism of the early 1970s our of frustration at the failure of Arafat's diplomatic approach.

If the PLO ever succeeds in winning independence for the Palestinians, it already has a sophisticated infrastructure that it says would provide the foundations of the new state. Parallel to its military and diplomatic work, the PLO has used Arab funding to establish educational and medical services, trade unions and business enterprises. It also has a parliament-in-exile, the Palestine National Council, which encompasses a wide range of Palestinian opinion. (R)

Recently, the Arabs failed to agree at the Fez and Amman summit conferences and now they want to go hack to demand what they had rejected at these two summit conferences. The problem lies with the Arabs' failure to agree and adopt a united stand. #### Sri Lanka seen headed for early elections

By Dalton de Silva

Sri Lanka has been gripped by election fever in anticipation of a presidential poll which political analysts believe may be called for October. Speculation has increased since the government decided to amend the constitution so that the president can seek a second term when four years of the normal six-year term have expired.

While both political analysts and astrologers see signs of an election in the offing, it will depend an the fate of a bill sanctioning an early second term which is soon to be debated in parliament. President Junius Jayewardene, leader of the ruling United National Party (UNP), completed four years in office last Fehruary and can stay in power until early 1984. A general election is not due until the second half of 1983.

But political analysts say Jayewardene might call a presidential election, possibly in October, to take advantage of disarray among opposition political parties. If he won, analysts expect he would dissolve parliament and call a general election in the hope that his party would also gain a second term.

Supporters of the ruling UNP expect Jayewar-dene, who will be 76 in September, to emerge an easy winner. They say no opposition figure has the national appeal to pose an effective challenge. The president led the UNP to a resounding victory at the last general election in 1977, inflicting a humiliating defeat on the Sri Lanka Freedom Party (SLFP) nf Prime Minister Sirimao Bandaranaikc, which managed to win only nine seats in the 168-member parliament.

The performance of the economy since the present government took office may also help the president's election prospects. Finance Minister Onnie de Mel said last month that despite a hostile international economic climate, Sri Lanka bad achieved an average 6.5 percent annual growth rate in its gross domestic product (GDP) in real terms over the past four years.

He said investment, which was about 16 percent of GDP under the previous government, rose to an average 28 percent in the period 1978 to 1981. Unemployment, at about 24 percent of the labor force in 1977, had been reduced to 15 percent by Construction was a leading sector, with an average 13 percent annual growth rate, De Mel said. Although the performance of plantation crops of tea, rubber and coconut — was stagnant, production of rice and other agricultural products rose by an average five percent.

The cost of living remains high, however, and the government has attributed its failure to reduce prices to international conditions beyond its control, particularly the rise in oil prices. Removal of subsidies on essential food commodities increased the price of rice, flour, bread, sugar and dairy products, but the finance minister has maintained that selective subsidies and welfare programs have protected the poorer and more vulnerable groups.

Recent communal violence between the majority Sinhalese and the Muslim minority in the southern town of Galle is not expected to affect UNP prospects. Muslims, comprising 7.6 percent of the 15 million population, are mainly businessmen who have benefited from the government's encouragement to the private sector and are expected to support it.

The ohvious opposition candidate in a presidential election for which political parties and the government's elections department are mobilizing would have been Mrs. Bandaranaike, who was the world's first woman prime minister, serving two terms from 1960 to 1965 and from 1970 to 1977.

But she was stripped of ber civic rights and expelled from parliament for seven years in October 1980 after a presidential commission found ber guilty of abuse of power during ber second term as prime minister. She may not contest presidential or parliamentary elections and is barred from canvassing for candidates.

Mrs. Bandaranaike. 66, has challenged President Javewardene to restore her civic rights and run against her in a straight fight for the presidency. Jayewardene bas said he would not pardon ber as "sbe does not seem to have reformed." He did not elaborate. With the former prime minister out of the fray, the opposition parties are seeking an opponent for Jayewardene.

Mrs. Bandaranaike's party, SLFP Sirima, and several other major opposition parties have agreed they should field a common candidate in an effort to defeat the president (R)

Massive migration turns Bombay into festering slum

By Stuart Auerbach

BOMBAY (WP) — The men pull heavily laden bandcarts through Bombay's teeming streets or sit under trees selling fruits or vegetables. If they are lucky, they earn $1.50 a day, but often they end up with nothing. Their bomes are attered pieces of burlap sacking stretched over bamboo poles on the pavements of India's richest city.
"This is where we can make a living and feed ourselves. There is nothing for us in our village." said Kamal Baskar, 21, as she stood in front of her burlap hovel. Her neighbor, Asha Gaewad noddell in agreement. Their busbands were off selling mangoes and garlic on a steamy hot pre-monsoon afternoon.

They are part of a massive migration from rural areas, flooding into Bombay at a rate of 300 families a day and threatening to turn one of India's most beautiful cities and certainly its most cosmopolitan one into a fes-

As many as 1 million people, 2 ½ times as many as 10 years ago, live on the city pavements, leading former Mayor Murli Si Deora to say, "the specter of Bombay going the Calcutta way — the living example of a dying city — is much before us."

He said Bombay's 9 million residents already overcrowd the city "like a giant sack stuffed with garbage."

"In the past decade," said The Times of India, whose headquarters is bere, "Bombay has become noisy, dirty, highly polluted and full of filth, squalor, disease and ugliness."

The decay of the once-grand city of Bombay provides the most vivid example of the increasing urbanization of India, a vast country of 700 million people that until recently bad escaped the problems caused by mass movements of its people from the land to cities that are ill-prepared to handle them. Fifty years ago, only 10 percent of all Indians lived in urban areas. By the 1971 census, that figure had increased to 20 per-

It was the jewel of the raj, the "Gateway to India" for the British colonialists, and became the throbbing heart of independent India's industrial and financial life,

Bombay is India's tinsel town, bome of the massive Hindi film industry, and the only metropolis in the country with a glittering skyline of high-rise apartments. They are set along a series of Arabian Sea bays. Bombay still offers amenities not found in other Indian cities: and overcrowded but speedy and generally efficient commuter rail line to its suburbs, where many of the poor live, and a telephone system and power grid that usually work. Bombay's share of India's wealth is completely out of proportion to its size. It generates, for instance, one-third of all the income tax collected by the Indian government and is reputed to be the center of a tbriving underground "black money" economy that is estimated to amount to 30 percent of the country's $160 billion gross national product.

Bombay is a city of conspicuous consumption, with its wealth showing on the streets. where people import foreign antos despite the high duty. It is the most expensive city in the country to live in.

But Bombay has begun to break down under the new population pressures. The massive power failures that are a regular part of life in Delhi and Calcutta hit Bombay for the first time this June, and parts of the city remained in darkness for as long as 10 bours. Bombay has the most polluted air of any city in the country. Its water supply and sewage systems are decrepit. An antiquated main hurst seven months ago, leaving 1.5 million residents without water for four days and spurring anti-government riots in the city. Even without breaking mains, about 20 percent of water moving through the city's pipes is lost through leaks and seepage.

Only one-fifth of the city's sewage is treated, and the beaches that used to be a major attraction of the city are polluted. Author Kushwant Singh, editor of The Hin - dusten Times, who has been an unabashed fan of Bombay, described returning there after a six-month absence and finding "my love for Bombay turned to sour bate.

"The stench...that pervades this queen of Indian cities brought vomit to my throat," he

There are 570 officially designated slums scattered throughout the city, including the one believed to be the largest in Aisa, Dharavi, where a half million people live. In all, about half of Bombay's residents live either on the pavements, in cramped 10square-foot rooms in officially declared slums, or in ancient tenements called chawls that collapse on an average of one per day during the torrential rains of the monsoon. Drainage in the city is so bad that the city's traffic-control branch published a list of 17 points expected to flood during the monsoon. Deora, the former mayor, estimated that the city can take care of about 3 million people — a third of the present population drawn by the magnet of the money that can be made

Bombay is built on seven islands that in the past three centuries have merged into a narrow neck stretching into the Arabian Sea. But most of the jobs in the city are concentrated on its southero rip, while the workers live in suburbs that spread as far as 20 miles inland,

While Bombay's industries like the cheap labor coming in from the country, politicians proposed last year to limit migration to the city through a sort of internal passport — a motion that later was declared both illegal and impractical.

So Indians keep flocking to Bombay, willing to put up with slum or pavement living for the job opportunities and the chance for advancement that Bombay offers.

One slum-dweller's son, for instance, 14year-old Arshad Hussain, finished 11th among all students in the city in merit exams. Called "a nugget in the dirt" by the Hindustan Times because of his poor living conditions, Arshad is the first slum-dweller to do that well in the tests, which can ensure him an education and give him a fighting chance to get out of the cycle of poverty.

There are tens of thousands, however, wbo don't seem able to get on that road. Sita Parwar, 20, was born on Bombay's pavements, was married on the pavement and most likely ber children will be born on the pavement. Her slice of pavement was providing space for people more than 20 years ago - when only a few residents lived on the streets - of plastic cover the roofs. There were even two water taps, so the pavement-dwellers can draw water and bathe near where they live, even if it is on a public street. But the nearest bathroom facility, a public latrine, is about a 15-minute walk

Parwar, whose busband is a garbage collector, wants to leave. "How long can I live bere?" she asked. "After all, this is a road." Last year, during one of the worst downpours of the monsoon, city officials tried to clear out blocks of pavement-dwellers, knocking out their bovels and loading them on trucks and buses to return them to their bome

But the brutal manner in which the demolitions were carried out caused a violent backlash. Civil liberties groups went to the courts, which ruled that the pavementdwellers can stay as long as they do not block walkways and roads.

GATEWAY OF INDIA: This Bombay structure, built in 1911, is a major

Non-nuclear defense to beat the Soviet Union

LONDON (LOS) — A new term is edging into military discussions — "alternative defense". "Alternative" means an alternative to nuclear weapons for defending Europe against a possible Soviet threat.

The notion has been considered, albeit in a strictly limited way, at NATO beadquarters in Brussels. A study by experts there is reported to envisage the arming of ballistic missiles, such as the Pershing 2, Polaris and even the big Trident C4, with conventional instead of nuclear warheads for use against airfield and other "infrastructure" targets in Eastern Europe.

One hundred and fifty such rockets equipped with cluster bombs and concretepenetrating "bomblets" are reportedly considered enough to put Warsaw Pact airfield runways out of action. Others could be armed with new precision-guided munitions (PGM) for attacking military headquarters, key communications points and supply routes.

This would enable the Supreme Commander Europe, Gen. Beroard Rogers, to paralyze the dangerous second wave of any Soviet attack without baving, as foreseen under present doctrine, to resort to first use of tactical nuclear weapons,

Until recently the use of such bugely expensive missiles to carry high-explosive warheads would have been considered too wasteful to merit discussion. What bas changed that is the vastly improved accuracy with which warheads can now be delivered, thanks to infra-red and television systems for terminal guidance and the increase in explosive power, weight for

At a large remove from this study by NATO planners, "alternative defense" is a current subject for study in British universities and research institutes. The aim is to find ways of stopping the drift of NATO into nuclear "war-fighting" plans, that is to say plans to use new tactical weapons, like the neutron bomb, to stop Sovier armored divisions, in a belief that the subsequent missile exchange could be controlled and "won".

The coordinating body for most of this research is the so-called Alternative Defense Commission. a 20-strong group of defense and political experts, working in association with the School of Peace Studies at Bradford University.

The commission is preparing a report on its findings for publication later this year. Interim papers have dealt with ideas for improving the cost-effectiveness of conventional forces, such as the mobilization of armies, shifting naval development into fast patrol craft, and enhancing air defense capabilities at the expense of strike aircraft.

More radical alteroatives being studied by tbe commission include territorial defense (i.e. by a citizens' militia) on the Swedish and Swiss models, defensive guerrilla warfare and defense by civil resistance. Predictably most military men are dismis-sive of these alternative strategies. A former British government chief scientist, Sir Solly Zuckerman, and a former chief of defense staff, Field Marshal Michael Carver, have both come out roundly against Britain's acquisition of the Trident missile (arguing instead for a "minimum" deter-

PRINCETON. New Jersey, (R) - Five years ago, to prove the dangers of nuclear arms proliferation, John Aristotle Phillips designed an atom bomb while an undergraduate at Princeton University.

Today, the 27-year-old Princeton graduate is running for Congress on the same issue that prompted the design. "The nuclear freeze is a big issue in this campaign. People want to start reducing the level of nuclear weapons." Phillips said in a recent interview.

The crisis centers on Aruba, an island of about 70,000 inhabitants off the coast of Venezuela that is expected to gain autonomy soon from the Antilles and is moving toward independence from the Netherlands.

Some knowledgeable observers are worried that leftists may gain dominance in Aruha under the leadership of the island's most popular politician, Berico Croes. Officials in Washington and the Antilles are even discussing the possibility that Venezuela might seize Aruba, to which it ships much of its crude oil for refining.

The Aruban issue has so polarized the islands that the Antilles government in Willemstad, Curacao, has virtually ceased to function since January, when it fell because of defections in Prime Minister Domenico F. Martina's ruling coalinon. The crisis was spurred largely by disagreements over the future of the Antilles in general and Aruba's movement toward independence in particu-

"Everything points to the fact that Aruha may have oil," says Paul G.M. Loewenthal. economic commissioner of the Antilles. That's one of the main reasons Aruba wants independence from the Annilles. It doesn't want to share that wealth."

In addition, Arubans charge that their affairs, and their tax dollars, are being mishandled by the government in Willemstad. Aruba has an unemployment rate of only 4 percent, while the rate on Curacao, the chain's most populous island, is 15 percent. The other five Antillean Islands, which are not as anxious to become independent, are worried about bow an Aruban breakaway would affect their political and economic The other islands are Bonaire and Curação

- which with Aruba are known as the "ABC' islands off the coast of Venezuela and the three Dutch windward islands: St. Maarten (the Dutch part of a part-Dutch. part-French island), St. Eustatius and Saba, all about 100 miles east of Puerto Rico.

For Years, Arubans bave been agitating for independence from the Antilles, the last overseas territory in what once was the sprawling kingdom of the Netherlands. Then late last year, Holland, which wants to decolonize all of its Antillean Islands, reached provisional agreement with the Antilles on a separate independence for Aruba.

Later this year, a Dutch-appointed panel of three Dutch and four Antillean representatives - dubbed the committee of seven is expected to agree on Aruban separation from the Antilles - or "status aparte" within the next two years. Independence from the Netherlands would come gradually over the next 10 years.

Autonomy would come to the chagrin of the Reagan administration, which sees any political fragmentation in the Caribbean as increasing the possibility of leftist subversion and shifting to the United States more responsibility for the region's welfare.

The decolonization stakes are higher for the Antilles than for other Caribbean territories because as much as 10 percent of the oil imported by the United States passes through the islands. The total includes both Gulf oil. from huge tankers to smaller ones that can dock in U.S. ports, and the mostly Venezuelan oil from those islands' refineries.

"We would rather see the six of them remain together and we would rather see the islands remain under the wing of the Netherlands," said Mary Kosheleff of the State Department's office of Caribbean affairs.

Georges Fauriol, a Caribbean expert at the Washington-based Center for Strategic and International Studies, says that Croes — the leader of Aruba's independence party, MEP. and the Island's most powerful politician -'appears to be leading Aruba, not only down the road to independence, but also down the road to a left-wing regime with strong ties to Grenada and Fidel Castro's Cuba." Grenada, which gained independence from Britain in 1974. has had a Marxist leadership since However, Laurence R. Birns, director of the Council on Hemispheric Affairs, another Washington think tank, discounts the possibility of radical change.

"The islands themselves are so commercially oriented - most of their wealth is from oil and banking - that there's no possibility there's going to be a Grenada-type explosion there or a radicalization of politics," he said.

Aruba's uncertain political destiny has prompted concern about nearby Venezuela, which supported Argentina's unsuccessful seizure of the Falkland Islands from Britain earlier this year. "Venezuela, which sided wholeheartedly with Argentina, has made it quite clear that it considers the ABC islands to be very much within its sphere of influence." Loewenthal said in a recent article in Antillen Review. "Developments unwelcome to Caracas will not be tolerated." Citing close historical links between Venezuela and Aruba, Kosheleff said that Venezuela might take Aruban independence as a "green light" to take over the island although she thinks Argentina's defeat on the Falklands would make the Venezuelans think twice about such a venture. "Venezuelan bistory books talk about Aruba being part of Venezuela." said

An ominous twist came in March, when a Venezuelan protest prevented NATO naval maneuvers set for April off Aruba involving U.S. and Dutch forces. Loewenthal said that Washington and Holland, by backing down on the maneuver plans, showed that Venezuela's "vested interest" in the nearby Antillean Islands "is being recognized, if not officially, then in the international corridors of power."

He said that in negotiations on the Antilles' future, the islands will have to get from Holland "the assurance that it will continue to take charge of external defense."

For its part, the Netherlands hopes to improve its interoational image by shedding its colonel baggage, particularly in tough economic times. Economic aid from Holland to the Antilles has slowed to a trickle.

The Hague even tried to nudge all six islands toward independence together by attempting to broaden the committee of seven's charge, which is to study Aruban independence and its ramifications. That ploy failed when the representatives from Bonaire, Curação and the Windward Islands bowled in protest.

One factor worrisome to the Dutch is the example of Surinam, which was the South American colony of Dutch Guiana until 1975, when Holland granted it independence after a gradual severance of ties - a process similar to the one envisaged for Aruba. Surinam since has been plagued by military coups and racial tensions.

The Antilles are also vulnerable on the economic front. Tourism, another mainstay of the islands' economies, is reportedly off sharply this year. Said one St. Maarten sailboat-cruise organizer this summer: "It's been murder."

Meanwhile, in an effort to stanch the outward flow of potential U.S. tax revenue, the Reagan administration is pressuring the Antilles to renegotiate its tax treaty with the The treaty makes the Antilles attractive to

U.S. companies and investors because it offers low tax rates, exempts interest payments from withholding taxes and guarantees anonymity for foreign investors.

"On the one hand, it's always disturbing that these kinds of debates go on," said one foreigner. "On the other hand it's probably a good sign that the party can tolerate this kind of open debate."

One Chinese artist shrugged and said, "1 don't bother to read about it. I just do my own work. My paintings may not be hung in public, hut at last nobody tells me what to paint in my studio." In the current debate, report of The

Baffling mysteries surround ancient Inca ruins in Peru sought refuge when their cavital Ouze

LIMA (AFP) - The recent discovery of underground temples and a maze of galleries beneath the ruins of Machn Picchu in southero Peru, the lost city of the Incas, may offer some insight into the baffling mysteries that surround these ancient Inca ruins 150 kms from Cuzco. While exploring the northeast zone of the famous site earlier this year, a Peruvian archaeologist. Julinho Zapata, came across the entrance to a underground gallery overrun by vegetation, whose walls and top were covered with carved blocks of granite, evenly

He was unable to delve any deeper into the gallery because of cave-ins, water seepage and bats. But now further research has begun at the site, though it will undoubtedly take considerable time and money to explore the vast web of galleries, one of which is believed to run to the base of a neighboring mountain. Manuel Chavez, a Peruvian arcbaeologist and professor at Cuzco University, suggested the galleries might lead to tombs, temples and maybe even Inca palaces under Machu Picchu. Prof. Chavez also noted the existence of that were built by the Chavin civilization, before the Incas. Meanwhile, the galleries are yet another link in the great mystery of the ruins of Machu Picchu, which were discovered in 1911 by Hiram Bingham, an American from several underground temples around Cuzco

Yale University. Bingham had undertaken a great adventure - to locate the city where the Incas had sought refuge when their capital, Cuzco. was conquered by Spanish conquistador Francisco Pizarro in 1533. When Bingham arrived, the magnificent ruins of the city were still lost under a dense layer of vegetation, except for a small clearing where generations of a few Indian families had grown food.

The American adventurer was almost certainly the first non-Indian to arrive at the site. Even the Spanish conquistadors, who left few stones unturned in their search for gold, failed to push through the indomitable jungle to the region.

No one knows with certainty what led the Incas to build Machu Picchu — old mountain in Quechua — on a small 2.500-meter high plateau surrounded by the high peaks of the Vilcabamba Mountain chain, at the edge of the Andes and the Amazon forest. It may have been a military or religious center, a last refuge forthe Incanprinces and high priests, or the heritage of an even more ancient past. Some of the buildings, whose massive carved stone walls defy a knife blade to slip between the blocks, resemble the great palace at Cuzco, built at the height of the Incan empire. But others, older, less imposing structures filled with ceramic objects, recall more ancient pre-Incan cultures, like the Chimu, whose center was far away on the northero coast of Peru. Archaeologists, Inca specialists and the 300-odd tourists who visit the site every day may have some answers to these questions after the coming exploration of the newly discovered depths below Machn Picchu. At the same time, of course, with new discoveries the mystery may thicken further.

Narcolepsy controlled but not cured by drugs

Ry Kin Mille

NEW YORK (AP) — Each day of her life. Miss Ryan consumes 45 milligrams of speed — dexedrine — prescribed by her physician, just to stay awake enough to function. Miss Harden has narcolepsy and without this drug, she is liable to nod off at nearly any moment.

"I fell asleep once when I went into the bathroom to let a drain of water, fell and woke up with a concussion." Miss Ryan said in a recent interview. "I have been known to sleep 22 hours at a stretch. I even fell asleep once over a stove."

Narcolepsy is a neurological disorder which has no known cure. Its principal symptom is excessive sleepiness. The only medically sanctioned treatment is analeptic drugs—colloquially, ups—such as dextroamph etamine and pemoline.

The other primary symptom of the disorder is cataplexy — a sudden loss of muscle tone hrought on by intense emotion. "About nine years ago. I started having these attacks." said Mari Kaestle. 36-year-old toy designer. "I would feel this sense when I heard something funny. But it got to the point where my husband and I would go out to dinner and I'd just spend the whole meal sliding out of my chair or with my rice in the plate."

"Having narcolepsy is like always being as sleepy as a normal person might be after staying awake three days." said Bill Baird, a narcoleptic and president of the American Narcolepsy Association (ANA) in Stanford. California.

Although the cause of narcolepsy is a mystery, researchers believe it had to do with a chemical imbalance in the part of the hrain that controls wakefulness. Researchers believe there is a genetic cause to narcolepsy and have found multiple instance of the illness within families.

"The best hypothesis is that narcolepsy is caused by a tension in the brain system," according to Dr. Merrill Mitler, chief of the sleep disorders program at the State University of New York at Stonybrook. "It doesn't appear to be anatomical. Out there are obvious abnormalities in the brain chemistry."

Typically, narcolepsy first shows up between the ages of 10 and 30. Correct diagnosis, however, takes most narcolepties an average of 10 to 15 years after consulting three to five physicians, according to the ANA.

"In a physical exam. you don't find anything wrong with a person who has narcolepsy" Baird said. "You must run special tests." said Mitlers. "After the initial symptoms, over the next five to seven years the individual may get worse and more symptoms may appear." Mitler said. "But then there's a period of stabilization that lasts the remainder of the individual's life. There is some scant evidence that women after menopause get somewhat better, and some scant evidence that males after 50 or 60 get better. But it's possible that they simply become more experienced at dealing with their symptoms"

There are various narcolepsy associations in the United Kingdom. Japan, Germany and Canada, as well as the United States. Most narcoleptics control their illness by taking drugs, but the effects are sometimes unpredictable.

"I started mutilating my face, and I think that was very drug-related." said Miss. Kaestle, whose cheeks bear pock-like scars, she said she also suffered severe depression and dizziness, all of which she hlamed on drugs. And the drug she was taking to stay awake was having the opposite effect. Miss Kaestle stopped the drugs altogether in 1979.

"I had withdrawal symptoms that were fairly severe for several months after, but I basically knew that's what they were," she said. "But I felt like just kicking my heels up in the air. After I stopped taking those drugs. I could walk, I could talk, I was almost hymnor."

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: There's so much we bear that's scary. Take aspirin, for example. What used to be a wonderful drug has now become surrounded with suspicion. For example, its association with Reye's syndrome — we hear it'll cause bleeding; it will bore a hole in your stomach; it's poison for people with ulcers.

factors that cause depression more often in women. They may be hormonal, psychosocial or genetic. It's well known that following menopause there's greater risk of becoming depressed. It may be due to imbalance of production in estrogen and progesterone. This has a profound effect on the metaholism of the nervous system.

Even during the younger ages, think of the tremendous demand on woman's ome. She may be family secretary and chauffeur. She's the manager of household budget. Who takes care of the husband and children when they are ill? Suppose she works at home and outside? Think of the financial and social adjustments after divorce. Fortunately, we now have pills that help lessen the load of depression that patients carry as a heavy hurden.

Dear Dr. Steinerohn: I don't want in become too introspective about my cholesterol levels, but I think maybe I should. What I'm asking is this; does family history play an important part? I'm only 19. —Mr.

Dear Mr. T.: A had heredity should make us more aware of the "silent" attackers. It gives us time to set up defenses. For example. Carlos A. Dujovne, M.D., professor of medicine at the University of Kansas School of Medicine says, "Individuals whose mother or father has had heart disease before age 55 should be tested even earlier in life, preferably as children." So you see, you will not be ahnormally introspective by asking a doctor to check on your cholesterol even though you are only 19.

(Tamorrow: Heart attack - how long in hospital?)

Mitler, a professor of psychiatry, is particularly concerned with improving diagnostic techniques for narcolepsy. He said the key indicator is the multiple sleep lateocy test, in which a subject sleeps at two-hour intervals during the day as his brainwaves are monitored by an electro eocephalograph.

There is one more important symptom Mitler looks for on this test: rapid eye movement, or rem sleep, a period of light sleep in which people dream, their eyes darting back and forth.

Normal sleep follows a distinct pattern. First is a period of relaxation called the alpha state. Next is Stage 1, a light sleep which lasts a few minutes. Then the normal sleeper enters Stage 2, which is a little deeper. His eyes will seem to roll beneath their lids. This is followed by delta sleep, the most oblivious state. Finally, about an bour or so after falling asleep, the subject reaches rem, which is again light sleep. The narcoleptic frequently goes right into rem sleep.

Miss Ryan, who was a chemist and once entertained the idea of being a doctor. became a potter so she could work at home. away from the pressures of fighting to stay awake in a lab. She said she hasn't suffered greatly from being a narcolepoc. Now in her 50s. she developed narcolepsy when she was 19. She was not correctly diagnosed until 5 ½ years ago.

"I've been able to live a relatively normal life as long as I didn't expect too much from it." Miss Ryan said. "I'm disappointed that I wasn't able to do all the things I planned. But I'm adaptable and I did some other things and did them quite well without really understanding a propleme."

ding narcolepsy."
Miss Harden, 38, who was diagnosed at 14, said the illness has not been a great hardship.
"I get depressed about three times a year, and it's solely because of the fact that you've got to live on pills," she said.

Nicotine may have hidden therapeutic effect

By Anthony Tucker

LONDON (G) — Smoking may have hidden benefits — and not only for the revenue men. The observation that, for reasons nuknown, the proportion of non-smokers with the distressing (and potentially fatal) condition known as ulcerative colids is remarkably high, may point to a therapeutic effect. Somokers, it seems, are protected against the condition.

The question is whether you can have the therapy without the smoke. a matter of special importance to those non-smokers who suffer from seemingly uncontrollable degenerative bleeding and ulceration of the coloo.

If correspondence in The British Medical

Jaurnal points in the right direction then, at least for some people, the answer could be yes and fairly soon. Doctors Roberts and Diggle, of Newhury, England, having identified a patient whose ulceraove colitis is charmed away within a matter of days hy taking up smoking, have takeo the experiment a step further.

What in the smoke, they asked, could have such an effect remote from the site of absorption in tarred up lungs? One obvious answer was nicotine, carried by the bloodstream preferentially to the site of inflammation. So, when their patient relapsed through once again abandoning smoking they tried a single, non-bliod, courandomized and hence wholly unscientific test. Nicotine, absorbed from chewing gum, was substituted for remedial fags.

The result was a triumph of therapeuce control. At a chewing gum delivered dose of 20 milligrams of nicotine a day the ulcerative colitis remained in remission. At half this nicotine dose there was an explosive relapse. But the relapse was controlled within 48 bowrs by a return to 20 milligrams of nicotine a day.

Single cases, of course, do not make good medicine and chewing gum may seem almost as offensive as smoking to the fastidious. But it seems that nicotine may have a value hitherto undreamed of: but beware, for it is also highly toxic. Self-medication might turn out to be the ultimate cure.

Swedes propose wage earner funds to give a boost to flagging economy

STOCKHOLM (R) — Swedes are drifting back from summer holidays to a fierce preelection dehate about a plan to make workers and employers save and invest money.

The many opponents of the radical scheme. advocated hy former Prime Minister Olof Palme's Social Democrats, say it could tilt power heavily in favor of the trade unions.

The Social Democrats say the plan is vital to give the flagging Swedish economy a boost hut economists calculate it would alter the ownership pattern of Swedish business. "It's communism pure and simple." said one owner of a small business.

The proposal to establish "wage earner funds" around the country is rapidly turning Sweden's Sept. 19 parliamentary and municipal poll into a one-issue election and one of the most dramatic for many years.

But for the plan, which most Swedes reject. the Social Democrats would be clear favorites to win and regain the power they lost in 1976 after 44 years of uninterrupted office. The idea, backed by the trade unions, is for a percentage of firms' profits and workers' wages to be put in collective funds to buy shares in companies quoted on the stock exchange.

Economists say the funds could generate three to four billion crowns ($540 to $710 million) in annual investment capital and own 15 percent of business enterprises within five years. Such a means of boosting investment and widening worker participation is nor new as a political idea but no country has ever actually adopted it.

The Centrist (agrarian) and Liberal parties. now ruling in a shaky minority government, the opposition Conservatives and employer organizations all oppose the plan. "It would mean the transformation of the Swedish social system, since privately owned husiness enterprises would be taken over said the Federation of Swedish Industries.

According to opininn polls, most Swedes agree. One sample showed 53 percent of voters were against the funds, 16 percent were in favor and 31 percent undecided. Paradoxically, the latest poll of party support gave the Social Democrats under Palme 46 percent of the vote, three percent more than they won at the last elections in 1979.

The Conservatives also had a good showing with 27 percent, seven more than in 1979, but the Liberals with seven percent and Centrists with 11 were losing support, the poll showed. Social Democrats in the trade unions and the traditionally radical far north of Sweden are the strongest supporters of the funds.

They say the plan is essential to make industry democratic, secure investment and thereby protect employment and social security. The national unemployment rate is only three percent but the rate rises to 15 percent in pockets in the north.

The Paris-based Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) called for more investment in a recent report on Sweden, which pointed to some economic improvements but an underlying lack of industrial competitiveness.
Other Social Democrats are beginning to fear the funds scheme could cost them much support if not the election itself. Palme personally opposes the plan to which he is bound by a party Congress decision, while eminenr Swedish economist and life-long Social Democrat professor Assar Lindbeck has just quit the party in protest at the proposal.

The proposal has raised constitutional questions and commentators say implementation could be delayed for years. It is also highly technical and ordinary Swedes now show signs of bafflement and bordom with endless media coverage of the plan. "We've got to find some other, simpler issues before Sept. 19 or many Swedes will just not come out to vote." said a Social Democratic Party

The Conservatives, a growing force in Swedish politics under their new leader Ulf Adelsohn, have a different prescription for a leaner, healthier economy - tax and public spending cuts. But they are unlikely to win enough support to take office alone and would face hard negotiations to form any coalition with the other non-Socialists.

In 1981, they left a coalition with Liberals and Centrists because they wanted more sweeping tax cuts than their partners, Swedish politics has been paralyzed ever since. with the minority government depending on Conservative support in every parliamentary vote for a majority of one over the Social Democrats and Communists in the 349-seat

Opinion polls suggest that the two governing parties could be almost annihilated at

Canada uses gerbils to fight drugs

MONTREAL (LOS) - Prison drug rackets in Canada will soon be tackled by an unusual new force in crime detection - a team of highly trained gerbils.

Selected for their keen sense of smell and trained at a secret government center, these small, mouse-like creatures may revolutionize the fight against the smuggling of drugs into federal pentientiaries.

This bizarre resort to rodent power has been made by the Correctional Services of Canada, which is responsible for the nation's major prisons. The scientists have trained gerhils, which will be kept in cages at prison gates, to sniff out various drugs and then to press alarm buttons if they scent narcotics.

Gerbils, whose drug detection powers are already being tested at Canadian airports, bave several possible advantages over tracker dogs, officials believe. They need little space or food; they are relatively quiet (apart from the odd squeaky treadmill in the cage perhaps); and, are loyal to more than one handler.

Now their powers to cope with the rigors of big-time crime are to be tested — though government officers refuse 10 say which prison will be the first experimental center or which drugs they will be trained to detect.

"Really, we have been caught on the hop by all the media interest in these animals, said a slightly exasperated Dennis Finlay, chief of media relations for the correctional

Pearls cultured in Taipei black clams

By Thomas Chen.

TAIPEI - A wealthy mother in Taiwan, aware of its traditional curative values, pays $125 for a tael (3.75 grams) of powdered pearl at a Chinese medicine store. A young girl uses her savings to buy the same exotic stuff, because she believes that powdered pearl is a superior cosmetic.

In a seemingly unrelated situation, fish pond farmers in northern Taiwan have been plagued by the growing population of black fresh-water clams, called Anodota Woodiana. These everpresent field mollusks deprive the fish fry nf the planktnn the baby fish feed upon, and even wound the fish with their sharp shells.

Now pearls are being cultured in these barmful clams — like a daydream come true. The credit goes to a pearl dealer, an enterprising farmer, a country girl and the government Chupei Fish Culture Station. Several years agn, when a Taiwan pearl dealer was purchasing pearls in Japan he learned the secrets of pearl culture. After his return, he organized with his brother farmer Fan Kuo-pin, an experiment on "seeding pearls" in native clams. Fan employed a high school girl, Yeh Su-tuan, as a part-time assis-

The girl was taught to cut the flesh of a clam into small hits and then transplant the hits really believe in what she was doing until, two years later, she saw that pearls actually had grown in the seeded clams.

Galvanized hy the sight and, hardly believing her eyes, she felt the dozens of pearls with her fingers. The pearls she had created were irregularly shaped and were not indescent. Nevertheless, they filled her with a feeling of accomplishment and stimulated the desire to improve upon what she had

She had carefully documented the physical conditions of the clams before and after the transplantations. Gradually, she came to understand the relationship of these physical conditions, transplanting techniques, and the quality and temperature nf the water to the quality of the pearls.

Now this country girl has become the most skillful pearl culturist in Taiwan. The firt batch of pearls she cultured was sold in Japan at attractive prices. Her present problem: how to increase production to meet the vast Wearing a neckalce made of pearls cultured by her own hands. Yeh, in the sultry summer days, works with her clams from dawn to dusk. During the cold days of winters past, she went to the ponds and paddyfields to collect healthy clams. Often, still, she says, her eyes smart from working too long at the meticulous transplantation. Now - her accomplishment recognized — she bas been employed by the Chupei Fish Culture Station as a teacher as well as a technician.

Groups of enterprising farmers come to the station to watch her and learn the operation. She patiently begins: "Pearl culture is the art of transplanting the cells from one clam to the outer mantle (epithelium) of another." There is a strip of cells in every clam that secretes an indescent matter which, under proper conditions can form into a pearl. The necessary first steps are to collect good clams, open them carefully and strip the cellular glands. The glands are cut into small pieces for transplanting into the outer mantles of other clams.

The bost clam is opened a little with a wedge. Then, Yeh uses a pair of small scissors to cut 15 tiny slits into either side of the onter mantle, sticking to the shell. She inserts into each of the slits, a small piece of gland and then removes the wedge. "It is a simple joh, but calls for painstaking care. If you cut the eipthehum through, the pearls will grow as part of the shell and will be impossible to remove," she said.

The process took her only one minute, and on completion, she immediately moved the clams in a pond. The seeded clams are kept in framed nets, which hang on strings about 30 centimeters under the water's surface. She

"These framed nets are our 'intensive care wards," said Yeh, "It takes three to four months for the clams to recover from the 'surgery.' Actually they will spend their entire lives in the nets."

TREASURE TROVE: An opened mollusk reveals opalescent treasures.

Miss Yeh no longer needs to collect clams frnm the ponds and paddyfields. They are cultivated in great numbers in ponds outside her nffice. She carries out a mass "prenatal examination" nn the clams every half munth tn remove the dead and morihund. She has now trained more than ten new pearl culturists, some of whom have already begun to make mnney with the new technique.

Ambitinus entrepreneurial pearl culturists have tried to hire Yeh, making tantalizing offers. Some have offered to back her in establishing her nwn business. She chose to remain at the Chupei Fish Culture Station because of her excitement about the possibility — through the use of station facilities - nf making technical breakthroughs in pearl quality and production.

There are problems in Taiwan's pearl culture development. First, the industry is in its infancy and there is no organization to serve as a prime mover. Considering that, after a clam is seeded, it takes at least two years for the pearl to grow, and that techniques are still unsure, substantial investments in time and money would be at risk in a really major

Second, consumers have long accepted the size, shape and color standards prescribed by Japanese suppliers. We have come to believe that good pearls should generally be round and silvery. Most people aren't aware that most of the pearls offered in jewelry stores were polished and decolorized. The color of a cultured pearl is always consistent with the iridescence of the individual clam that produces it. It can also be affected by the depth and chemistry of water and the health of the host clam. While the standard silvery pearl is lovely, a golden one may be even more fascinating and a true black one is rare and can be most valuable.

Production quantity remains a problem. Because only a few farmers have so far engaged in the new business, the production is too limited to attract buyers to Taiwan. The pearls must be processed and sold in Japan. To overcome the difficulties, the Chupei Fish Culture Station is attempting to play the role of prime mover. According to Liu Chikang, director of the station, there are 5,000 hectares of ponds and canals in northern Taiwan, much of which is suitable for pearl culture. The value of pond production would be much increased if fish culture could be supplemented with pearl culture. The stock material - field clams - is commonplace in Taiwan; each hectare of pond may now contain thousands of pounds of such clams. As has been noted, their increasing numbers have reduced oxygen and plankton in the ponds, affecting the growth of the fish.

The future for development of pearl culture here is promising, not merely because of an abundant clam supply, but also because of the comparatively limited need far special additional facilities. Farmers can grow pearls together with fish, and a pearl culture project can be large nr small. A farmer can start such a business with as little as ten or twenty thousand New Taiwan dollars (the equivalent of several hundred U.S. dollars). Interest is increasing: the Chupei Fish Culture Statinn now receives about 50 inquiries every day. showing the results of an active farm prog-

The station is now studying optimum transplantating positions on the outer mantle of the clam, the relationships of water quality, temperature changes and food supply in the secretion of iridescent element. Its successes have been reflected in a number of extension seminars in June, plus publication and dissemination of detailed pamphlets for farmers' reference.

The shortage of technicians is burningly felt. Only a dozen of the newly trained technicians are really competent. The training takes a year. A fully competent technician like Miss Yeh can seed 200 clams a day. After two years experience, each technician can claim a very attractive income.

Actually there are two kinds of transplantation - with or without a nucleus. A pearl with a nucleus is cultured by inserting a rounded piece of polished shell into the body of the mollusk. This is a difficult technique, but suitable for oyster culture in the sea. Because it contains a globular nucleus, a pearl so cultured is likely to be equally rounded. But, since such a pearl contains only an outer layer of iridescence, it cannot be efficiently powdered for use in medicines and cosmetics. The pearls now cultured in Taiwan are with out a nucleus, and are good for powder as well as for jewelry. Nevertheless, the jewel-shape is not round, but irregular.

The Chupei Fish Culture Station began its experiments in pearl culture in October 1977. It discovered that clams seeded in winter had the highest rate of survival; summer clams are difficult to secd because the reproduction gland is too big, and minor neglig-ence will injure the cells of such a clam. The station cultivated seeded clams in central and southern Taiwan, and found that a clam cultivated at Kanshang in southern Taiwan could yield 3.1 grams of pearl in seven months; at Chupei in northern Taiwan, it took 22 months to produce 3.79 grams of pearl - indicating that the quality and temperatures of southern Taiwan waters are more suitable for pearl culture. On the average, cultured clams here produce 3.7 grams in two years.

Taiwan has imported clams from other countries for variety experiments. According to Director Liu, a Japanese clam cultivated in Taiwan can grow in two years to the same size as a five-year-old in Japan. Liu regards pearl culture as a natural sideline for farmers — anyone can do it, at any time, with little capital. If a culturist has no pond, he may keep a few net of seeded clams in a friend's pond. If he hasn't time to seed all his clams in one session, he may seed a few whenever he is free. Even after twn years of cultivation, there is no hurry to harvest: the pearls will not perish or rot like pears in an orchard if the harvesr is delayed. To the contrary, the longer a pearl is cultivated the richer will be its iridescence.

Three or four years from now, pearl culturing could become a very popular husiness and, in light of its natural advantages, Taiwan has no reason to fear international competition. In the future, even a less privileged mnther nr a pretty lady making up for an evening date may well be able to afford to buy a packet of powdered pearl fur traditional medicinal uses, or for that perfect makeup for a night on the town.

Vatican clarifies role in Ambrosiano affair

ROME, Aug. 22 (R) — Cardinal Agostino Casaroli, the Vatican's secretary of state, was quoted as saying letters of patronage from the Vatican Bank to the late president of the collapsed Banco Ambrosiano did not necessarily imply full-scale guarantees.

Cardinal Casaroli, effectively second only to Pope John Paul in the Vatican hierarchy. made the statement in an interview appearing in Monday's edition of the Italian weekly news magazine L 'Espresso which the publishers released Saturday.

It was the first time that a Vatican official had commented openly and in detail on the involvement of the Vatican Bank, with the now-liquidated Banco Amborsiano spa since the Holy See last month orderd three external bankers to carry out a full inquiry.

Cardinal Casaroli also disputed press reports that the controversial letters of patronage covered loans totaling $1.4 billion. He said it was of fundamental importance to clarify the validity of the letters.

"In the opinion of experts some of those letters, which are part of the normal banking practice, are such that they do not necessarily imply total commitment," Cardinal Casaroli

"I believe there are limits to the links which many people think those letters give rise to." he added.

Cantesting the press reports that the letters covered credits totaling $1.4 billion. he said this figure included some options in which the Vatican Bank had no part.

MOSCOW, Aug. 22 (AFP) — Soviet leaders are doubly pleased with the one-year extension of the Soviet-American grain agreement because it eases Soviet supply problems and breaches America's tough trade policy, observers here have said.

However, the Soviet press Saturday failed to report that the Soviet Union Friday informed Washington that it had accepted the extension.

Peking to set up N-power station

PEKING, Aug. 22 (R) - Plans to build Communist China's first commercial nuclear power station are at an advanced stage, the Workers ' Daily said Thursday.

The newspaper said research and design for the project were almost complete and environmental tests had been conducted. Diplomatic sources said the reactor would be built near Shangbai. using Chineseproduced equipment for the core and other key parts. But they noted that the 300-megawatt nuclear plant would be small by Western standards, and it would probably take years to start producing electricity.

development by means of trade sanctions. But the extension means that the Soviet Union is assured of supplies of between six and eight million tons of grain on the basis of arrangements made in 1976. This will enable the Soviet Union to cope with severe food problems following two bad years in the agricultural sector.

The extension of the existing grain agreement represents a political success for the Kremlin. The Soviet press has strongly attacked the U.S. policy of applying trade sanctions against Eastern bloc countries.

The press has urged Western European countries to disassociate themselves from what it described as a "line of confrontation" between the two powers.

Observers said the extension of the grain agreement provided Moscow with an additional argument against the American embargo on the use of U.S. equipment in construction of the trans-European gas

One Soviet analyst told Agence France-Presse Saturday that "U.S. President Ronald Reagan would like to impose on his allies restrictions which he himself does not accept."

This argument is expected to be developed by the press here in coming weeks. Press reports have already commented that the West, in seeking to penalize the Soviet Union, is punishing itself.

The rig, owned by Atwood Oceanic of the United States, is in the Fateb offshore field in a concession area operated jointly by the Dubai Petroleum Company and Standard Oil of New Jersey. . .

Fateb is one of two main offsbore regions that account for the bulk of Dubar's crude

The rest of the injured suffered only minor burns and were treated on the spot. Two days before the rig fire, a powerful explosion at a desert 'Union explosives' warehouse destroyed two depots, injured one person and damaged a nearby security guardbouse.

U.S. economy witnesses a hectic week

NEW YORK, Aug. 22 (AP) - The U.S. economy moved - and delivered something for just about everyone last week, but it also left a lot of questions unanswered and a lot of arguments unsettled.

In the space of five business days. Americans saw: - Lower interest rates and bigher stock prices. - Tax increases and reforms to bring about $100 hillion in extra revenues and budget cuts to trim the red mk. A victory for President Ronald Reagan and bipartisan. if somewhat reluctant, support from Con-

Bur the shot in the arm that sent spirits soaring on Wall Street and in Washington wasn't enough to cure the basic problems of the U.S. economy.

The patient is still quite sick," said Jack W. Lavery, chief economist at Merrill Lynch Economics Inc. "The temperature has gone down, but the patient may have something of a relarse.

There has been no sudden drop in unemployment, now at a record 9.8 percent, and none is immediately likely. Estimates of the gap between federal moome and federal spending continue to grow. And any drop in consumer interest rates - the kind that determine whether people can afford to borrow money to buy houses and automobiles is still months away.

Financial Roundup

Riyal rates stay depressed

JEDDAH, Aug, 22 The local markets continued to react cautiously Sunday, with few deals reported all day in thin trading. Volume of transactions were also low, with dealers engaged in very short-term covering positions. Rival rates were depressed with some continuing falls in shori term-rates. taking the week-fixed deposit to 7-8 percent on opening, but later inching down to 61/2-63/4 percent levels - the lowest seen this year.

In the other fixed deposits, the picture was the same with the one-month JIBOR falling to 834-914 percent and the one-year deposit at around 111/2 percent. The gap between the riyal and dollar deposit rates has now narrowed considerably, with the one month dnBar quoted at 914-976 percent and the one year at around 115's percent

Pressure on rival rates to ease further is also heing exerted by continuing rival liquidity disbursements which enter the market. While these might not be large in volume, vet given the thinness of the local market structure, any injection is bound to cause sharp market reactions across the

In the local exchanges, spot riyal/dollar rates opened cautiously at 3.4395-03 levels, but lack of business drove the spot price to below the official SAMA (Saudi Arabian Monetary Agency) parity level of 3.4400 at 3.4390-98. Interbank dealing both out of the Kingdom and the Bahraini-hased OBU's - offsbore banking units - was slight, even at the lower prices.

Mexicans heave sigh of relief

MEXICO CITY. Aug. 22 (R) — Mexican businessmen, foreign bankers and the national press voiced welcome relief over a decision by international banks in New York to allow debt-crippled Mexico to delay its loan repayments. "This gives us some breathing space, at least," said one banker. The New York meeting Saturday approved the rescheduling of $10 billion in short-term loans and raised the prospect of immediate loans of more than $4 billion, mainly from official U.S. agencies and American banks. The worst financial crisis to hit Mexico in modern times has emerged over the past few weeks. The country, despite oil wealth ran out of dollars and was forced to introduce unprecedented exchange control regulations.

The worst now seems to be over for the peso. It rallied in trading on Thursday and Friday to close the week at around 100 to the dollar compared with 130 earlier.

"Financial respite" was now the authoritative daily newspaper Excelsior headlined its editorial on the New York meeting which brought representatives of about 100

Cities Service seeks merger

NEW YORK, Aug. 22 (R) - A large U.S. oil and gas company, which only a few months ago was stubbornly proclaiming its independence, finds itself searching desperately for a merger partner.

Cities Service Company has rejected one bidder, been finally set aside by another and appears to be playing a cat-and-mouse game with a third while it seeks a purchaser who will pay more.

Cities was first mentioned as a possible takeover target early in 1981 when a gathering world oil glut began pushing down the prices of oil company stocks.

Its attraction stems largely from its strong cash flow and proven domestic reserves of more than 300 million barrels of oil and over 3,000 billion cubic feet (85 billion cubic meters) of natural gas.

The firm; troubles began last May, when the Mesa Petroleum Company announced that it intended to enter the big time by acquiring Cities, which indignantly launched a takeover bid of its own for the smaller firm.

foreign banks face to face with Mexican Finance Minister Jesus Stlva Herzog. Excelsior said the agreed three-month suspension of principal repayments would give the government a breathing-space to formulate sounder financial policy.

The paper made no suggestions though everyone from the government to the general public agrees that financial austerity will reign for at least the next year or so. Mexico has also begun negotiations for a $4.5 billion credit with the International Monetary Fund (IMF), which impose strict conditions on any credit it advances. Such conditions are likely to include dismantling Mexico's deep-rooted system of basic consumer goods subsidies, big public spending cuts and some sort of wage control to help lower inflation.

McEnroe, Connors bite the dust

MASON. Ohio. Aug. 22 (AP) — Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia took only 63 minutes Saturday night to crush secondseeded Jimmy Connors 6-1. 6-1 and move into Sunday's final of the $300.000 ATP Tennis Championships where he will meet Steve Denton.

Denton, seeded 11th in this 64-player hard court tournament, earlier powered his way past top-seeded John McEnroc 7-6, 6-4. Sunday's winner will collect $48,000 with $24.000 going to the loser.

Lendl was awesome as he posted his first "official" victory over Connors in eight career metings. Connors had lost to Lendl in their last meeting, an exhibition last January in Tornonto.

The only two times Connors could hold serve he had to battle back from love-40 and 15-40. In the first set, Connors, who won Wimbledon in July for the second time in his career, won just 13 points. Many of those came on unforced errors by Lendi.

In the second set. Connors averted a shutout hy saving five match points in the sixth game by holding serve. He had to win nine points to do it. matching the nine points he had captured in the first five games of the set.

Connors didn't help himself as time after time he drove the ball into the net or our of the court for unforced errors. The left-hander also committed the only double-fault of the McEnroe, the world's No. 1 player and the defending champion here in this hard court tournament, played spiritless tennis, serving five double-faults, four in one game - and being dominated by Denton's hard serve.

Denton fired five aces and nine service winners. But the statistics don't tell the story. Time and gain, McEnroe got his racket on Denton's booming serve, but either put it into the net or out of the court. And Denton, like McEnroc one of the better doubles players in tennis, dominated the net as the New Yorker never was able to find his game.

Denton broke McEnroe in the sixth game of the opening set, winning three of his points on McEnroe's errors. The New York Lefthander broke Denton right back in the next game with a perfect foreband passing shot. one of the winners he hit in the windy conditions at the Jack Nicklaus sports center.

"Everything I hit was tentative." McEnroe said. "There is nothing about my game that is not tentative right now. I'm just worrying about myself and I have a lot to worry about

"I think be missed a lot of first serves that he usually doesn't and that was attributable to the wind." Denton said of McEnroe. "I don't thow my ball up as high (on the serve)."

McEnroe, who was troubled for the second straight day by a bleeding blister on the bottom of his right foot, also was troubled by his shot selection. Asked about one particular shot, he said: "That was a stupid shot. It's not one to try in a tichreaker with the wind blowing. But then I've been trying stupid shots all week."

In Los Angeles, Australians Rod Laver and Fred Stolle scored semifinal victories in the $33,000 Lager Legends championships at the Los Angeles Tennis Club.

Laver, seeded second in the event for former tennis standouts now 35 years of age and older, topped unseeded Mark Cox of Great Britain 6-1, 6-3, The unseeded Stolle upset too-seeded Ken Rosewall of Australia 3-6.

McEnroe...a spiritless display

Meanwhile, Jay Lapidus, a hard-hitting 23-year-old, on Saturday won the right to battle seventh-seeded Eric Fromn in Sunday's final match of the Stowe Grand Prix Tournament. This will be the first Grand Prix finals match for both players. Fromm, a 24year-old defeated Terry Moor. 6-2. 3-6. 6-2. Lapidus downed Tom Gullickson 6-4, 7-6.

Tennis fans watched the semifnals matches huddled in blankets to keep warms while a bitter wind forced players to place their shots carefully. Fromm is suffering from tendonins. but still found his blistering forhand to be his most consistent weapon against Moor. Moor fought back after a slow start in the first set to win the second set, but couldn't keep up the momentum in the final set.

Fromm. who has fought his way up rapidly to No. 74 in the amateur rankings, attributes his performance to "A lot of hard work."

"I'm playing much more consistently than I've ever played before." the New Yorker said. And he'll have to play well Sunday if he wants to beat Lapidus in the finals of the $75,000 championship.

Currently ranked 103rd in the world, the determined lefty is playing more intensely and more aggressively than he has in years. Lapidus earlier disposed of second-secded Tim Mayotte, Brad Gilbert and Australian John Alexander, all in straight sets. Fromm has also beaten Chris Dunk, and South Africans Eddie Edwards and Fred Sauer.

As Simmonds stretches Jaeger Martina breezes past Hana

MONTREAL. Canada. Aug. 22 (AP) — Martina Navratilova. showing why she is ranked No. 1 in the world, beat Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia 6-2. 7-5 Saturday to advance to the final of the $200,000 Player's Challenge Tennis Tournament.

Navratilova meets third-seeded Andrea Jaeger, who beat Italy's Sabina Simmonds 6-2. 1-6. 6-1 in the other semifinal.

Navratilova, who has won 63 of 64 matches this year, took advantage of unforced errors by Mandlikova to breeze through the first set. Mandlikova blasted several forehand winners past Navratilova during the opening set, but was unable to hold service and netted several easy returns.

Mandlikova rushed the net effectively in the second set, but her service again let her down. Trailing 4-2, she put away a backhand volley to break Navratilova's service and win the seventh game at love.

But Navratilova broke back to go up 5-3, Mandlikova broke Navratilova again and held her own service to tie the set 5-5, but unforced errors cost her the final two games of the match.

Navratilova has a 7-4 lifetime record against Jaeger's including three straight victories this year. "She's the one who had better do something different," said Navratilova, when asked what strategy she would have to employ to beat Jaeger. "The last three times I've played her I've won in three sets."

Jaeger, ranked fourth in the world by the women's tennis association, overcame a shaky second set to win 6-2. 1-6. 6-1 on a chilly, windy afternoon at Jarry Stadium.

Playing her characteristically steady, baseline game. Jaeger won the first set with relative case against an erratic Simmonds but became erratic herself in the second. "I just let my concentration go a little bit." said Jaeger. "She had nothing to loss, so she started hitting for winners, and I just started going Simmonds, 22, who repeatedly helted returns long, wide and into the net in the first set, said her reversal in form was a simple case of eliminating mistakes.

"I didn't make too many errors in the second set and I started going for the lines more," said Simmonds. "I felt I had to move her around more or she would do it to me.

Gower's sparkling 111 boosts Leicestershire

LONDON, Aug. 22 (Agencies) - David Gower. England cricket star, hit his maiden century in the English Cricket County Championship this season for Leicestershire

- in sparkling style. The fair-haired batsman, who captained England in the second Test against Pakistan at Lord's, elieked into his best form against Somerset at Taunton. He made elegant strokes all mund the wicket to score 111 in 206 minutes before being caught in the slips off off-spinner Vic Marks. His century, out of Leicestershire's 364 for five declared. included two sixes and 13 fours. Nigel Briers kept him company with a superb unbeaten 91, and R. Cobb (63) and Roger Tolchard cracked a brisk 50 in Leicestershire's massive total. Somerset were 14 for one at the draw of South African Ken McEwan led an Essex run spree against Natwest Cup finalsits Warwickshire at Colchester. McEwan ravaged his third century of the season — scoring 128 in just 140 minutes with three sixes and 13 fours - as Essex caned 502 off a Warwickshire attack which included England skipper Bob Willis. McEwan eventually holed out to Barbadian Gladstone Small while attempting his fourth sixer.

Willis, named to lead the England side for the twin tour this winter, had a miserable day. His team was unable to stop the flow of runs. To make matters worse he failed to accept a return offering from Brian Hardie when the batsman was just four and his first seven overs cost him 43 runs. Hardie went on to make 86, with the other main contributors being Stuart Turner (83) and Graham Goocb

Yugoslavs brush aside Spaniards' lukewarm challenge

CALI, Colombia, Aug. 22 (AFP) - The Soviet Union swept aside Colombia by an enormous 67-point margin to consolidate their lead in the final pool at the Men's Basketball World Championships here Saturday. while the ageing World and Olympic champions, Yugoslavia, retrieved some of their pride by defeating inconsistent Spain.

The Soviets, looking very much gold medal material, used their match with the South Americans - allowed through to the final pool because they are the bosts - as a workout. Their 143-76 (balf-time 56-36) victory was their fifth straight win all-told, counting preliminary round games, and second in the final pool. Romas, with 28 points, and Komichyus, 22, were their leading scorers in a relaxed exhibition.

Yugoslavia, unexpectedly beaten by the United States team of college players in the opener, could count themselves lucky as Spain played well below par and they came through 109-91 (54-49). However, they will not be able to count on similar generosity when they face the Soviets on Monday.

Spain came through the preliminary round unbeaten, with a victory over the Americans to boot, and thrashed Colombia, by a 53point margin, in their first final pool match.

The Soviets now bave six points from three matches — their preliminary round 108-69 win over Australia also counts for final pool standings. Yugoslavia and Spain. with five points each from three games, come next, followed by the United States and Australia. on three points from two games, and Canada. whose three points come from three games. Colombia have two from two.

The Spaniards played well only for the first five minutes and with playmaker Juap Corvalan out of form they became disjointed and gave the ball away too often. Kicanovic and Radovanovic topscored with 26 points each for Yugoslavia - nothing like the force they once were. Epifano, 22 points. and Sibillo, 20, were Spain's top scorers. The Yugoslavs built up an early lead which the Spaniards could not bridge even after a late rally. Also the east Europeans strong defense proved a strong factor in its triumph.

The Soviet coach played his starters very little against the Colombians. Vladimir Thatchenko, the 7-foot-4 star, never took the court and watched from the sidelines his teammates giving the Colombians a

Nolan Ryan pitches towards fame as Astros slip ahead

NEW YORK, Aug. 22 (AP) — Nolan Ryan pitched a five-hitter and neared second place on the all-time strikeout list while leading the Houston Astros to a 5-3 decision over the Montreal Expos Saturday.

Ryan. 13-9, flirted with a Major-League record sixth career no-hitter, but that ended with two out in the fifth when Chris Speier and Doug Flynn hit back-to-back singles that scored Tim Wallach, who had walked, with the Expos' first run.

The 35-year-old righthander struck out five, giving him 3,433 career strikeouts. Walter Johnson leads the all-time list with 3,508, while the Seattle Mariners' Gaylord Perry is one strikeont ahead of Ryan at 3,434.

Ray Knight's sacrifice fly in the first off loser Ray Burris, 4-13, gave Houston a 1-0. In the third, Art Howe's RBI forceout provided Houston with a 2-0 edge. Cruz gave Ryan additional breathing room in the sixth inning with his eighth homer of the year, a two-run shot. The Astros scored their last run in the eighth on Howe's sacrifice fly.

Ryan, who walked three batters, worked out of a jam in the ninth when the Expos scored two times in an RBJ single by Gary Turner said the proposed league would field six, 45-player squads that would travel across the United States playing games in as many as 18 cities on Sunday and Monday nights. A championship game would be played in the Aloha Bowl in Honolulu, Hawaii on Dec. 19.

Turner aides would not disclose what facilities would be used or mention the cities that would host the games.

According to the aides, all players would earn between $4,000 and $5,000 (SR13,600 and SR17,000) per game. Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players' Association, said the agreement was made to provide "insurance" for the players in the event of a strike, lockout or NFL shutdown.

Steve Lundquist sinks own world breaststroke record

INDIANAPOLIS, Indiana Aug. 22 (AP) - Steve Lundquist broke bis own month-old world record in the 100-meter breaststroke Saturday night at the U.S. Swimming Long Course National Championships.

Lundquist, 21, was clocked at 1 minute, 2.53 seconds, breaking the former world mark of 1:02.62 he set July 19 at Mission Viejo, California. Lundquist, a member of the 1980 U.S. Olympic team, also won the 100, breaststroke at the World Championships in Ecuador earlier this month. Saturday might's victory was his ninth national title.

John Moffet, 18, third-place finisher in both the 100-and 200-breaststroke events at the World Championships and winner of the 200-breaststroke earlier in this meet, finished second at 1:03.16. Third place went to Bill Barrett, 22, the winner of the 200individual medley Friday night.

Lundquist's record swim followed an American record-breaking performance by Sue Walsh in the women's 100-backstroke. Walsh, 20, was timed at 1:02.48, breaking the U.S. record of 1:02.55 set by Linda Jezel in 1978. Betsy Mitchell, 16, was second at 1:04.02, and Debbie Risen. 16. was third at

The biggest upset in the four-day meet came in the women's 100-breaststroke, when 16-year-old Kim Rhodenbaugh beat triplegold medal winner Tracy Caulkins. Rhodenbaugh, a two-time national champion in the 200-yard breaststroke, beat the favored Caulkins at the 5-meter turn and stayed in from for a winning time of 1:10.79. Caulkins. 19, came in at 1:11.62 for second place --- her first loss in that event in a national meet since Caulkins, who earlier won the 200backstroke and the 200 and 400-individual medleys, was trying for her 43rd national swimming title. Third place went to Shannon Orcutt, 16. at 12:47.

Rhodenbaugh's older brother, Mark. 18. won the gold medal in the men's 100backstroke with a time of 56.90, Mark Rhndenbaugh set a national high school record in the 100-yard backstroke earlier this year. Second place went to David Bottom. 19. at 57,28. Tom Jager, 17, was third at After a tense tussle

Stewart, Strange share top spot in Buick Open

GRAND BLANC, Michigan Aug. 22 (AP) - Payne Stewart and Curtis Strange put out dramatic, head-to-head duel Saturday and finished tied at 12-under-par 204 after three rounds of the $350,000 Buick

Strange, the second-round leader started the day at 9-under, two strokes better than Stewart and four others - Fred Couples, John Cook, Lanny Wadkins and Masters champion Craig Stadler.

Strange, playing in a threesome with Stewart and Couples, shot 33-36 and carded a 3-under 69 while Stewart, who has become a gallery favorite caught fire on the back nine and finished with a 36-31-67. Winner of the tournament will pocket $63,000.

The turning point for Stewarst came on the -398-yard 10th hole where he chipped in for a birdie from about 18 feet (5.5 meters) away, over a high, rolling bank.

The 25-year-old Stewart, who won the Quad Cities Open a few weeks ago, then birdied 11,12 and 13 to pull within one stroke of Strange. Then Strange, who has not won on the PGA tour since 1980, bogeyed the 456-yard, par-4 15th and the two were even at 11-under.

Both made par on 16 and 17. Stewart, one of the longest drivers on the tour, put his drive on No. 18 about a foot into the round but only about 120 yards from the green on the 461-yard, par-4 hole. He lofted a 9-iron to within nine feet (2.7 m) of the cup, but Strange got inside, leaving his second shot only six feet away.

Both golfers had to wait as Couples, whose second shot was in the back bunker, blasted over the green and into the left bunker, then hold his next shot to save par and finish the third round at 7-under. Stewart's putt rolled around the lip of the Cup, then dropped in for a hirdie to put him 12-under and the beat was on Strange. He was up to the challenge, however, ramming his putt right into the back of the cup bringing a roar from the crowd. The co-leaders went into the final round three strokes ahead of the foursome of Peter Jacobsen, Bob Eastwood, Tom Kite and defending Buick Open champion Hale Irwin. A stroke back at 208 were Stadler, Cook, Wadkins, Larry Ziegler and Mike Donald. Couples was tied with Wayne Levi and Gavin Levenson of South Africa.

Norman leads Meanwhile, Greg Norman of Australia tamed the windswept Fulford Golf course with a three-under-par 69 and took the lead after three rounds of the $170,000 Benson and Hedges International Tournament.

Nick Faldo, lanky British star, hirdled three of the last four holes and closed in to one stroke behind the Australian. Norman had a three-round total of 212. Faldo was i three-way tie for second place with lan Woosnam of Wales and Graham Marsh of Australia, all at 213.

Boh Charles of New Zealand, the second round leader, took 74 in the difficult conditions and slumped to joint fifth place on 214.

Norman would have had a sensational score if he had not missed some short puts from two feet at the 5th, three feet at the 9th and four feet at the 8th and 11th. U.S. players were virtually out of the running for the title. The best placed Americans were Dave Ogrin on 220, eight strokes off the pace, and Tom Sickmann on 221.

Carner excels In the women's event, Joanne Carner, conquering swirling winds that haffled her closest pursuers, opened up a tournament record five-shot lead after 54 holes Saturday in the Chevrolet World Championship of Women's golf.

The 43-year old veteran needs a 35th career victory here to qualify for the LPGA Hall of Fame.

Carner shot a 1-under par 71 for a total of 213, three under par for three rounds over the Shaker Heights Country Club course. The previous biggest leads after 54 holes in this three-year old international event of 12 players was one shot in both 1980 and 1981

In the Group "B" match, West Germany defeated Australia 2-0 to finish at the top of the table and thus avoid meeting Pakistan in the semifinals. The Germans were the only maximum points. In another Group "B" match Canada trounced Singapore 7-0 to finish fourth in the group behind India. Kenya finished fifth and Singapore last after failing to score a singlegoal in the tournament. The semifinals hegin Tuesday after a rest day Monday.

The Pakistan-Malaysia match was played at a quick pace before 30,000 fans. And it was the bost nation which set the scoreboard moving first. Mustaffa slammed in goal in the 21 st minute to the joy of the capacity crowd. But the Malaysians' joy was short-lived, for within two minutes the Pakistanis restored parity through Taqdeer Dar. As Pakistan and Malaysia were evenly matched in nearly every department, individual flair in breakaway thrusts came to the force, but the rival defense held their ground. The teams went into the hreak 1-1, but Spearhead Chai Seng Yu, who proved a con-stant threat with his mercurial runs, hroke past a host of defenders and slammed in on the run. Pakistan custodian foiled the first attempt, hut could not recover, as Yu crashed the boards on the rebound. This was in the 42nd minute. Though Pakistan turned on the beat, they had to wait till the final minute to salvage a point. Maqsood Hussein was the scorer.

Germany scored through center-forward Thomas Reck and Volker in the second session to keep a clean slate. The Germans were aggressive right from the outset but shooting was not their strong point. They wasted umpteen number of penalty corners in the first session, before finding the mark twice in the second.

Pakistani preempts). The opening three club bld by Fazli was artificial and indicated one of seven different types of hands! The actual nature of the hand would presumably be described later on by the three-club bidder.

Munir responded artificially vith three hearts, aware that if Fazli's three club bld was based on a long and solid suit it could not be hearts. Fazii thereupon jumped to four spades, indicating a powerful eight-card spade suit, one ace, and also a void in an unspecified side suit!

Munir's five club bid showed first-round control of that suit, and Fazli's five diamond bid identified his void in diamonds. This was all that Munir needed to know, and accordingly he jumped to six spades, closing the bidding.

There was nothing to the play. Declarer ruffed the diamond lead, played the A-K of trumps and king of clubs, then led a heart, easily making the slam for a score of 1,430 points.

It was a magnificent triumph for the SAAPP convention. The identical deal was played at four other tables, and at each of them the South player opened the bidding as dealer with four spades. This was followed by three passes at each table. Maybe there's something more to SAAPP than meets Mugabe said in Harare Saturday that three South Africans were part of a group which had set up a base inside Zimhabwe and that the rest of the group had fled after the clash last Wednesday at Sengwe near the horder with Mozambique.

He said the incident - the first reported between Zimhahwean and South African troops since Zimhahwe became independent in 1980 - showed "a development in South Africa's program of destabilization ... aimed at Zimhabwe

Last Thursday the Zimhahwe government said troops had been sent to the borders with Mozamhique and South Africa to repel anti-Mozambican guerrillas crossing into Zimbabwe to look for food.

In his statement Gen. Viljoen said: "It is not policy to respond to Prime Minister Mugabe through the media since no complaint bas been received through official channels. There were, bowever, no operations

ZAPU proposal develops snags

HARARE, Aug. 22 (R) — A proposal by Zimhabwe's opposition ZAPU party for talks with Prime Minister Robert Mugabe's ruling ZANU-PF Party has hit a snag, political sources here say.

Relations between the parties, formet guerrilla allies in the Rhodesian Civil Wat, have been marred recently by government accusations that ZAPU is responsible for a spate of violence, particularly in Matabeleland, in which at least 30 persons have died in the past five months.

The sources say Mugabe wants ZAPU leader Joshua Nkomn 10 denounce publicly unrest in the southern province and urge people to cooperate with the government before any talks. But Nkomo, whose polinical power hase is in Malableland prefers a meeting before such action, the sources add. ZAPUs proposal for talks followed an emergency party meeting last Sunday, which said Zimhahwe's stability was threatened because of tension between the parties. Nkomo declined comment Saturday and aides at his Bulawayo residence said he was prepared to speak only if there were news from the capital.

A ZANU-PF Party official said this week Mugabe was considering the talks proposal. But the party has yet to make a promised statement. A meeting between the party leaders on Aug. I lowered the political temperature promoting a generally conciliatory mood, hut violence continued last week.

Troops reported killing four dissidents in Matabeleland, and a member of the security forces and one dissident were wounded in separate clashes. Dissidents rohbed three huses on the road to the Victoria Falls resort. where six tourists abducted almost a month ago are still missing.

"Nevertheless an immediate investigation has been ordered by the government following the Mugabe statement and should any undisciplined behavior prove to be true it will be dealt with in accordance with the seriousness of it. An investigation such as this would be greatly assisted should the Zimhabwean government communicate openly all their information on a government-to-government level."

Mugabe claimed that from papers and equipment found on the bodies the soldiers were prepared for action in Zimbabwe, probahly sabotage. Other hlack members and white members of the group fled in the clash, leaving behind both East and West bloc arms. explosives and radio sets. he said.

Zimbabwe police bave detained at least 20 hlacks and whites since independence for allegedly being spies or saboteurs for South Africa. But this is the first time Mugabe has said south African troops had actually infiltrated his country.

Mugabe's statement followed an announcement last week by his minister of state for security. Emmerson Munangagwa. that troops had been strung along the 800-mile border with Mozamhique to prevent incursions by rebels of the Mozambique National Resistance. The resistance, which Mozambique's Marxist government says is armed. trained and supplied by South Africa, is fight-ing an escalating guerrilla war to install a pro-Western leadership. South Africa denies links with the movement.

The bodies of the whites were laid out in a Harare bospital Sunday where they were inspected by journalists and diplomats.

Chun sees role for Africa, Asia

LAGOS, Aug. 22 (AFP) - Africa and Asia will play leading roles in history in the coming century now they are no longer continents of "subjugation, poverty and chaos," South Korean President Chun Doo Hwan said Sunday.

Chun told reporters as he left the Nigerian capital for Gabon, after a three-day visit here, that he hoped his visit would open the way to greater African and Asian cooperation.

A joint statement noted that Chun's talks with President Shehu Shagari had focusted on exchanges of experts in agricultural, scientific and technological areas, in order to increase bilateral cooperation.

The two leaders condemned South Africa for occupying Namibia and repeated their support for the Southwest Africa People's Organization (SWAPO), the Namihian nationalist movement. The statement said world leaders must ensure that Namibia would be independent by the end of this year.

The two presidents condemned apartheid and called for a total boycott of South Africa. They expressed hopes that global negotiations for a new world economic order would soon take place. Chun, accompanied by his wife and a 160-strong delegation has visited Kenya, and will also travel to Senegal after his trip to Gabon.

Police violence, Sikh unrest cloud India's political scene

NEW DELHI, Aug. 22 (R) — Outbursts of police lawlessness in Bombay and violence in the state of Punjah ate clouding Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's political horizon at a time when her government's international ptestige is bigh.

On the international front, India's teputation in the nonaligned movement has been enhanced by the emergence of New Delhi as the most likely venue for the 97-member movement's next summil. It was originally scheduled for Baghdad next month but that venue has been cast in doubt by the Itan-Itaq wat. Mrs. Gandhi returned this month from a highly successful fence-mending visit to the United States and is due to go to the Soviet Union next month, showing that India is courted by both superpowers. But all this. and her hefty parliamentary majority, may offet scant comfort to the prime minister as she surveys a ragged political scene in states controlled by her Congress (1) Party.

Last week police and their supporters went on the rampage in India's largest commercial center, Bomhay, after the local state government took action against their union leaders who were demanding better pay and conditions. Army and paramilitary troops crushed the disorder but not before it had unnerved many Indians and focused attention on urhan

Mauritius today Mrs. Gandhi visits

NEW DELHI, Aug. 22 (AFP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi will leave here Monday for official visits to Mauritius and Mozambique, with a formal stopover in the Seychelles on the way home next Saturday.

The neutralization of the Indian Ocean a point on which her hosts agree - will be one of the themes of her talks, an official spokesman said here Saturday. Mts. Gandhi's visit to Mauritius will be the first hy a head of state since the installation in June of Prime Minister Aneerood Jugnnauth's leftist India fully supports the progressive and nonaligned policies of the Mauritian government and hacks Mauritian efforts to recover the Chagos Archipelago, the spokesman said. The Chagos — including Diego Garcia Island where the United States has leased space from Britain and huilt a major air-naval hase - were detached from Mauritius before Britain granted independence in 1968. U.S. patrol planes based on Diego Garcia monitor Soviet fleet operations in the Indian Ocean.

Mrs. Gandhi will reaffirm India's total opposition to any military presence in the Indian Ocean, the spokesman said.

The Indian premier will arrive Wednesday in Maputo, where she will he the guest of Mozambican President Samora Machel, who visited India last April. Mrs. Gandhi will speak out in favor of immediate independynamic city but the commercial gloss hides simmering tensions. Some 250,000 textile workers have been on strike there for seven months, seriously affecting exports. The apparent failute of the Maharashtra State Congress (1) government to spot the potential for trouble among disgruntled police bas led to opposition calls for its dismissal.

Bombay is in many ways India's most

In Punjah, a prospetous northern farming state, two hijackers of Indian Airlines planes by Sikh extremists in under three weeks and a grenade attack on the Congress (1) chief ministet are the latest manifestations of unrest. One hijack ended last Friday when the lone gunman was shot dead by police. The earliet one, on Aug. 4, ended with the sur-tendet of the hijacket. Punjab is the bome of most of India's 11

ity with a great martial tradition. A Sikh, Zail Singb, became India's president last month. However, several extremist groups have arisen in recent years, seeking to emphasize the separate Sikb identity in political terms. Some demand a separate homeland, others greater autonomy fot Punjab.

Chief Minister Darbata Singh, who decided to crack down on extremists last month, escaped unburt from the grenade attack on Friday.

territory administered by South Africa, the spokesman said.

Affirming support for the "front line" states confronting South Africa, the spokes-man said Mrs. Gandhi would meet in Maputo with Indian diplomats representing New Delhi in four of those states - Mozamhique, Tanzania, Malawi and Zimbabwe. India could offer to help modernize and expand the port of Mapuio, according to informed

Nairobi fire hits 4,000

NAIROBI, Aug. 22 (AFP) - Nearly 4,000 persons were left witbout shelter when a huge fire swept through their wooden and cardboard dwellings in the Nairohi shanty town of Mathare Valley early Sunday, the Kenya News Agency reported. The fire was said to have been started by a paraffin lamp at about 2 a.m. when most of the residents were

Arab amendment raps satellite surveillance

VIENNA, Aug. 22 (Agencies) - A United Nations conference on outer space (Unispace) passed an Arah amendment to its final report denouncing the use of surveillance satellites against the Lebanese and Palestinian people.

The amendment, which did not name Israel, said "many delegates denounce the wrongful use of space techniques, such as surveillance satellites, in cases of military conflict and condemn the aggression committed against Lehanon." It was proposed by Algeria and supported by Saudi Arabia, Lebanon, Syria. Libya, Tunisia, Sudan, Egypt and Iraq. The amendment also denounced "the barharous massacres committed against the Palestinian and Lehanese civilian

Delegates also expressed "grave concern" over the danger of an arms race in outer space. The issue was the most hotly debated item which was not on the original agenda of the two-week Conference

As a result, the U.S. delegation initially insisted that military aspects should not be discussed by the meeting, hat, under apparent pressure from a host of Third World and nonaligned nations, relented for what U.N. chief delegate James M. Beggs said was a "change of position." "We share those con-cerns" with the other countries, the adminis-trator of NASA said, signaling U.S, support of relevant paragraphs in the final report.

A series of political squabbles delayed progress of plenary debates. Two such issues were ironed out with the help of conference President Willibald Pahr, the Austrian foreign minister, earlier in the day.

Another paragraph in which the conference

"noted" the concerns of the "group of 77" about the "arms race in outer space, direct

Japanese draw Hong Kong ire

HONG KONG, Aug. 22 (AFP) — Hong Kong students bave so far collected 300,166 signatures for a protest against newly tevised. Japanese history textbooks which minimize Japanese aggressive mfentions before and during World War II.

A rally is also planned at Victoria Park here on Sept. 18 to mark the "918" incident of Sept. 18, 1931, when Japanese militarists, fearing China might grow too strong. engineered the "Mukden incident" to occupy Mancburia.

The students will petition the Japanese consulate here Monday and Tuesday with the signatures. Hong Kong students have also launched a drive to boycott Japanese goods on Sept. 18 and 19.

The Japanese textbook revisions have raised a storm of protest in Asia. According to a Hong Kong student delegation which has just returned from Tokyo, the Japanese public does not like them any more than their were adopted by consensus as were the other 430 paragraphs of the final report.

The paragraphs of the report dealing directly with the militarization of outer space were adopted by consensus only after a 15-member group of "friends of the president" reached a compromise formula following a three-day effort.

In the consensus wording, the extension of an arms race into outer space is a matter of grave concern to the international community. "It is detrimental to humanity as a whole and, therefore, should be prevented, All nations, in particular those with major space capabilities, are urged to contribute actively to the goal of preventing an arms race in outer space and to refrain from any action contrary to that aim."

Another contentious issue was the use by all nations of the so-called geostationary orbit— an orbit 35,890 kilometers directly above the Equator, which is the only one capable of providing continuous contact with ground stations via a single satellite.

Equatorial countries of Latin America and Africa said that the orbit was located within their air space but failed to convince the majority of 94 delegations represented at the

N. Korea alleges germ warfare

TOKYO, Aug. 22 (AFP) — North Korea charged Sunday that bacteriological warfare experts of the defunct Japanese Imperial Army are preparing for germ warfare against the Korean people with their "U.S. imperial-North Korea's official Central News Agency (KCNA), monitored here, added that it was an open secret that hacteriological warfare carried out by the United States in the Korean War in the 1950s was prepared with the backing of the Japanese.

A virus of "epidemic hemorrhagic fever" was now being spread by the United States, using the South Korean people as guinea pigs and nursed by the "notorious bacteriological 'Unit 731' of the formet Japanese aggression army," KCNA said.

Many members of the former Japanese Unit 731 were now making a study of bacteriological weapon laboratory of the U.S. anned forces at Sagamihara on the western outskirts of Tokyo, in an attempt to "realize their old anachronistic dream," according to KCNA made the allegation in a commentary on a recent Japanese television documentary film on the former Unit 731 biochemical warfare team. It quoted the Japanese TV program as saying that during World War II at least 3,000 Koreans and Chinese were killed by the Japanese Army through experiments in bacteriological war-
